City primary election
Tuesday—candidates

Dixon voters will go to the polls Tuesday to vote in a city primary election. The primary voting will reduce a field of four candidates for mayor to two for the general election on April 15.

A total of nine candidates are seeking the four commissioner posts. The primary will trim the field to eight for the general voting.

In order to acquaint the citizens of Dixon with the candidates and with their positions on the issues, The Telegraph asked each candidate the following questions:

1—What, in your opinion, are Dixon's most pressing problems? What priorities would you establish for solving them?

2—Much has been said, pro and con, about the plans for a new City Hall. Do you feel a new City Hall is needed? If you feel one is not necessary, list alternatives as you see them.

3—Give your evaluation of each of the city's departments. List the strengths and weaknesses as you see them and your solutions to solving their problems. The departments are: Finance, police and fire, Oakwood Cemetery and sewer plant and street department.

Pictures of the candidates and their replies can be found on page 13 of today's paper. On that page is a precinct map and a list of the polling places.

Consumer prices
show another jump

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite the recent declines at the wholesale level, consumer prices continued to increase in January, rising six-tenths of one per cent during the month, the government reported today.

The January increase was led by a jump in food prices, especially for cereals and bakery products and fruits and vegetables. Over-all, food prices were up eight-tenths of one per cent from December.

Administration economists had been hoping the Labor Department's Consumer Price Index for January would reflect the decline in wholesale prices during the last two months, especially for food prices.

But the over-all increase in January consumer prices was only one-tenth of one per cent less than the December increase, indicating there has been only moderate relief for consumers from the nation's rampant rates of inflation.

Over-all, consumer prices in January were 11.7 per cent higher than a year earlier.

This January's increase, however, still was the lowest since last April, when the increase was five-tenths of one per cent. The Consumer Price Index in January stood at 156.1 per cent of the 1967 average of 100 per cent, meaning it cost $156.10 to buy a statistical sample of goods that cost $100 in 1967.

The figures were adjusted for seasonal variations, meaning seasonal factors were taken into account. On an unadjusted basis, the CPI rose five-tenths of one per cent in January and food prices advanced seven-tenths of one per cent.

The Labor Department said there were higher prices during the month for medical care, utilities, houses and some foods. Cereal and bakery products increased 2 per cent during the month and were 23.8 per cent above a year earlier.

Partially offsetting the higher prices during the month, the Labor Department said, were price declines for clothing, autos, beef, and sugar, and lower mortgage interest rates.

The decline in beef prices was their fourth straight monthly drop. Over-all, prices of meat, poultry and fish were listed as down nine-tenths of one per cent in January.

The increase of eight-tenths of one per cent in food prices compared with an increase of seven-tenths of one per cent in December. Food purchased in grocery stores rose six-tenths of one per cent and restaurant food advanced eighth-tenths of one per cent.

Death takes Williamson

ROCKFORD, Ill. (AP) — Walter A. Williamson, 74, owner of the Wagon Wheel vacation resort at Rockton, died Thursday night of a heart attack.

Williamson developed the Wagon Wheel from a truck stop into a multimillion-dollar resort that included golf courses, riding stables and a skating rink called the Ice Palace where Olympic star Janet Lynn practiced.

Among the other properties he owned were the Nachusa House, a hotel in Dixon, and Byron House, a hotel in Byron. He also was president of the Kelley-Williamson Oil Co.

Nixon's top three aides
draw at least 2½ years

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three men closest to Richard M. Nixon when he was president were sentenced today to at least 2½ years in prison for covering up the Watergate scandal.

John N. Mitchell, H.R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman were sentenced to 2½ to 8 years by U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica, who ignored a plea by Ehrlichman's lawyer that he be allowed to work with New Mexico Indians instead of going to prison.

A fourth defendant, Robert C. Mardian, was sentenced to 10 months to three years.

All four men have said they would appeal. They were allowed to remain free on bond. They must serve the minimum time of their sentences without opportunity for probation. But they can apply for reduction of sentence, which other Watergate figures have done successfully.

The sentences were pronounced two years, eight months and four days after the June 17, 1972 break-in at Democratic party headquarters in the Watergate office-apartment complex. The four men were implicated in White House efforts to hide involvement in the scandal.

Mitchell, Haldeman and Ehrlichman were convicted of conspiring to obstruct justice, obstructing justice and multiple counts of lying under oath.

Mardian was convicted only of a single conspiracy count.

They are the last of the major Watergate figures to be tried. Nixon was cited as a co-conspirator in the case, but his pardon by President Ford makes him immune from any prosecution.

Sirica imposed no fines. But to Mitchell, Haldeman and Ehrlichman, he made identical statements: "It is the intention of this court that the defendant serve not less than 30 months and nor more than eight years."

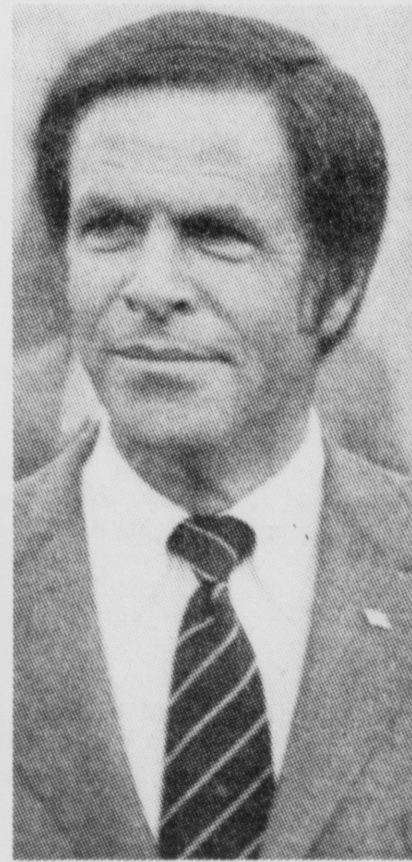

As they stood before the judge, the defendants clasped their hands in front of them at times. They were silent. Occasionally, Mitchell stared at the ceiling. When he returned to his seat after hearing his sentence,

ROBERT C. MARDIAN

JOHN D. EHRLICHMAN

H. R. HALDEMAN

JOHN N. MITCHELL

Mitchell looked pale.

The wife of only one defendant, Mrs. Dorothy Mardian, was in the packed courtroom. Ehrlichman's second oldest of five children, daughter Jan, sat in the front row.

Mitchell, the former attorney general, quipped to newsmen: "It could have been a hell of a lot worse. He could have sentenced me to spend the rest of my life with Martha Mitchell."

The Mitchells are separated. Only the lawyers for Haldeman and Ehrlichman made any lengthy speeches.

An attorney making his first appearance in Ehrlichman's behalf read from a letter written to Sirica by the former White House domestic counselor. "I profoundly regret my part," one passage said.

"My peers find me unworthy of their trust and belief ... I have been found to be a perjurer and no reversal on appeal can expunge the stigma of those verdicts."

Ehrlichman had been convicted in a previous Watergate-related case and his 20-months-to-five-year sentence was made concurrent with today's.

Mitchell, too, had stood trial earlier, but he was acquitted. "Whatever Bob Haldeman did, he did not for himself but for the President of the United States," said John J. Sirica, Haldeman's lawyer.

"He was caught up in a political maelstrom that engulfed a lot of other good people. Whatever Bob Haldeman did so did Richard Nixon ... but Richard Nixon has been freed of judicial punishment while Bob Haldeman suffered punishment and conviction," Sirica said.

But it fell to Ehrlichman's lawyer, Ira M. Lowe, to make the most dramatic appeal.

Lowe, who had not represented Ehrlichman before, began by saying his client "requests no less than a strict sentence from your honor ..."

Lowe said the court had the power to impose a sentence that did not call for imprisonment. He said Ehrlichman had spent much of the time since the New Year's Day conviction looking for areas where he might put his legal experience to the best use.

He said that Ehrlichman, a land-use lawyer, had investigated the plight of eight Indian pueblos in a very remote area of northern New Mexico and said the people are in dire need of help that Ehrlichman is uniquely qualified to provide.

Mitchell, Haldeman and Ehrlichman were the highest-ranked officials of the Nixon administration to be charged and convicted in the affair. Former President Richard M. Nixon was cited as a co-conspirator, but was pardoned for any crimes without ever being indicted.

Mitchell twice ran Nixon's presidential campaigns, was a former law partner and served as his attorney general. Haldeman was Nixon's right arm as White House chief of staff. Ehrlichman was next in the White House hierarchy, guiding the administration's domestic policies.

Mardian, a former assistant attorney general under Mitchell, was an official of Nixon's re-election committee. Like the other three, Mardian was convicted of conspiracy to obstruct justice and faced a maximum five years in prison and a $10,- 000 fine for that count.

Mitchell, Haldeman and Ehrlichman also were convicted of actually obstructing justice and were subject to five years in prison and a $5,000 fine on that charge — and even more on additional convictions for lying under oath.

The trial ended New Year's Day.

Theoretically, each of the men could have been sentenced to long prison terms — 25 years for Mitchell and Haldeman, 20 for Ehrlichman — but the usual practice in Sirica's court is to hand down at least some concurrent sentences on multiple counts.

Lawyers for all four men said they would appeal.

The sentencing started the clock on the appeals process. The lawyers had 10 days in which to file notice of an appeal.

With the record of the three-month trial filling more than 12,000 pages, it was expected that the appeals court would not return a ruling until the end of this year or later. Any appeals to the Supreme Court could easily double that time.

The sentencing day was one week short of the first anniversary of the cover-up indictments.

Usury charges at DSS unwarranted,
police discover

A probe by Dixon Police into alleged charges of usury, leveled against "certain management" at Dixon State School by an employee, has found the charges unwarranted.

Detectives were called in Thursday morning by DSS Supt. David Edelson after an employee, Norman Daraska, charged in a letter that personnel in the dietary department were operating a small loan business, charging fellow employees interest rates of 1,000 per cent.

The investigation revealed no criminal activity was apparent but, rather, the matter was prompted by a personal conflict between Daraska and George Hill, a supervisor in the central kitchen. Interviews with the two were marked by charges and counter-charges, detectives said, and, at one point during the interview, Daraska was quoted as saying he wished he had never written the letter.

Daraska was said to have expressed surprise that Dixon Police would become involved in the investigation. A delivery section employee in the dietary department, Daraska sent copies of the letter to Gov. Dan Walker, the State Department of Mental Health, and Director of Personnel, both in Springfield as well as area legislators and the media.

Talking with at least three other employees, detectives found Hill did make loans to the three, charging a lawful ceiling of 20 per cent interest, a charge which Hill denies.

Edelson said he was most gratified with results of the investigation and no further action would be taken in the matter. "We hope that this will convey to our employees that they should make their concerns known to Dixon State School officials and following proper procedure we will fully investigate any and all charges."

No charges were expected to be filed against Daraska.

Caller's death
claim unfounded

An anonymous caller to the switchboard at The Telegraph, claiming a Dixon State School patient had died in Chicago as a result of abusive treatment is being investigated by officials, however, DSS Supt. David Edelson said a preliminary check with Chicago officials revealed the boy is not dead and is in good health.

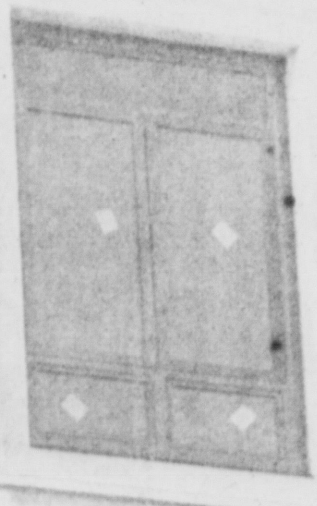

The caller, who was described as being in a frantic state, hung up before giving her name and did not wish to speak to reporters about the alleged charge. She gave no specific charge and did not mention names or location of the alleged mistreatment.

In checking the patient's record, Edelson said the boy was given an "absolute discharge" from DSS one month ago and released to live with his father in Chicago. Edelson did add that a routine check will be made and a visit will follow in the boy's home by a member of the Chicago staff of the Department of Mental Health.

Courthouse
remodeling in progress

BEFORE AND AFTER—Remodeling of the Lee County Courthouse being paid from federal revenue funds includes installing new windows all around the building. The new window on the top is on the third floor at the probation office and the older version with air conditioner is at the office of Judge Thomas Hornsby. (Telegraph Photo)

Workmen are busy in the first floor room which the County Board has used for many years, remodeling it to be occupied by the traffic division of the Circuit Court which is presided over by Judge Martin D. Hill. Hill's court presently is on the first floor at the east end of the building. (Telegraph Photo)

Seats have been removed from the front half of the spectators' area in the courtroom of Chief Circuit Judge James E. Bales to make room for desks of County Board members who will hold the first meeting in the new quarters on March 11. The board on Feb. 11 voted to move its meeting room to the third floor courtroom. New desks will be procured but the ones, now in use, will be set up for the March meeting. When the new desks arrive they will be permanently installed in the back half of the spectators' area. Included in the remodeling will be lowering the ceiling in the courtroom. (Telegraph Photo)

How to create jobs

Both the President and Congress say they will create more jobs by a tax reduction. It's just another batch of political hot air. Instead of more jobs it will build more inflation and the politicians certainly enjoy doing that. Just think, you are now paying 33 billion dollars a year interest on the money Congress has wasted to date. The only way to stop inflation is to stop voting more money on unnecessary laws. But the people elected to office by only 37 per cent of the citizens voting will continue to vote for laws that will take more money than the taxpayers supply, so the government will print more dollars and up goes inflation.

If your senators and representatives desired to create work they would pass a law removing all taxes on business and manufacturers. These companies do not pay any tax. They know what the government charges them so they add it to the cost of their product and you people who buy anything are the ones who pay the tax. Your sneaking politicians know this, but you never hear them mention this fact.

People should realize that soaking big business is really just soaking the source of their own paychecks. It also increases the cost and lowers the standard of living.

If 10 or 15 per cent of all Americans demanded tax removed from business you would get it. It is also necessary that government stop printing more paper dollars.

Taxes are at least one-third of the cost of operating a business. If this was eliminated your living expense would be one-third less. You would have money to buy and manufacturers would be busy. Everyone who wanted to work would have a job.

Mountain climbing on the North Wall

By HENRY J. TAYLOR

GSTAAD, Switzerland—Near here, at Grindewald, you face the North Wall of the Eiger Mountain. In mountaineering, 99 per cent of the way up is called a failure and the North Wall is professionally considered the hardest climb in the world. It can be a climb to hell.

Eiger means ogre. The North Wall is concave-shaped, like a towering amphitheater, and the summit is 2½ miles (13,038 feet) high. I have seen 90 people—rescue parties—on the Eiger's ice summit at one time. They scaled the sloping West approach. But the Swiss call the grim, nearly vertical North Wall the Nordwand, the Murder Wall, and that is precisely what it is.

Sixty-one mountaineers have died trying to scale it.

The British led the world up the Matterhorn in 1865. At least 100,000 people have since climbed the Matterhorn. But not until July 21-24, 1938—73 years later—was the Eiger Nordwand conquered.

Today it is illegal in Switzerland to make the attempt.

Mountaineers call a climbing group (any number) a "rope" and the key to the north wall was the Hinterstoisser Traverse, named for a German in a "rope" of four.

Blocked on the climb, Hinterstoisser discovered a treacherous narrow ledge across part of the North Wall's face. He died falling from it. Old weathered ropes still hang at the start of the Hinterstoisser Traverse, monuments to catastrophes.

There are four designated ice fields. Ultimately you encounter the fantastic White Spider. This is an appalling, tremendous overhang curling forward like a giant blister on the face of the Eiger. And it can be in the moment of complete exhaustion.

You must climb suspended downward on the White Spider's vast, icy underside. If you bear left too much, as several challengers have, you gradually enter a "cul de sac." In these, subtle outcroppings bar your escape.

But even if you avoid the many "cul de sacs" you must still battle up the White Spider's Exit Cracks to the Summit Ice field. The whole White Spider is the horror of upside-down climbers, but these Exit Cracks themselves are torrential waterfalls. When they freeze, any retreat is impossible. You die on the mountain.

As if all this were not enough, the summit temperature can drop to 40 degrees below zero. In the Alpine world the wind's velocity increases with the altitude. This is the rule in the mountains.

In compensation, the wind is steadier—but can be ferocious. And you must fear the power and perils of thermals; warm air currents rising to meet the ice air in the upper reaches. Thermals can be lethal.

Additionally—and without warning—driving rain or snow and stinging hailstones suddenly crash out of nowhere. Eerie St. Elmo's fire dances on your ice ax. Lightning flashing, thunder roaring, these ferocious storms sweep against you in relentless strokes of turbulence and terror.

The storms are also avalanche-breeders. North Wall attackers have usually dragged a 30-foot-long bright-red rope behind them. These are to help rescuers find them, perhaps under snow 20 feet deep.

The countless crevasses are always traps and always changing. Eiger crevasses, temperamental and unpredictable, are seldom twice the same.

Meanwhile, you are the target of fusillades of falling, bouncing boulders and incessant mountain rubble. An inexplicable "drying up" of the north Wall's surface has been in progress about 33 years. The face sheds violently, the horrible fusillades are released by the morning sun from collection bins high above.

Also, the Alps are actually tremendous water reservoirs. The Eiger contains trillions of gallons. It seeps down from the perpetual snowcap and fills the inside. This means new rivulets, new spreadings of the wet areas. And in a sudden cold, the water outcroppings turn to verglas, impossible to cling to.

Nevertheless, great mountaineers have long dreamed of a nonzigzag ascent—a "Direttissima," route—on the North Wall. This remained unachieved until 1966.

American challenger John Harlan, 30, of Kansas City, four Germans and one Scotsman—all imperiled on the 26th day—joined up on the same "rope." Harlan was killed on the "Direttissima" route. The other five succeeded.

Ditch those tinted glasses

By RAY CROMLEY

WASHINGTON (NEA)—A friend from a foreign country asks why President Ford isn't telling us just how rough our future is going to be.

It is his considered opinion we will have to change our life styles drastically and permanently. His belief is echoed by some researchers at the National Science Foundation and by a number of thoughtful economists in and out of the government.

I don't know how permanent our change in living will have to be, but one thing is clear: In the next few years, we will be required to make more sacrifices than we have been publicly discussing. We are caught simultaneously in four major economic revolutions, each of which puts a major stain on our living standards. One, we could take in stride, but not four.

First, of course, is the high cost of oil. Top men in the industry are certain we are running out of natural gas in the United States at a rate so rapid that no exploration subsidies can long stem the tide. The energy strain will be intensified by the multibillion dollar struggle to achieve independence.

Second, recent studies indicate the cost of protecting our environment will run into hundreds of billions in the 15 years just ahead, even assuming we adopt only the most reasonable and necessary antipollution standards.

Third, research published the past two months reinforces older studies which make it clear the projected growth of Social Security, Medicare and other programs for the aged will prove an almost impossible financial burden as oldsters increase and the percentage of workers declines.

Fourth, add the marked upswing of welfare and special benefits to one group of the population or another. Whatever one feels about the worth of these many programs, it is a fact that the budget of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare is now greater even than the mammoth Defense Department, and growing.

The impact is not only in the size of these programs but in the rapid growth which is leading to economic strains no economist has been able to accurately analyze.

Now money costs in the end are met only through the production of goods. That is, it is obvious that we must grow and manufacture more at pace rapid enough to meet the above-listed demands on our resources. But the production forecasts are exceedingly gloomy.

The early age of retirement, the growing number of older people, the accelerated shift of workers from production to service jobs, the delayed age at which young people move into the labor market on the average—all these trends mean that fewer and fewer production workers—percentage-wise—are turning out the goods we need so desperately. Consider these trends in conjunction with the mammoth growth of the spending programs listed above, which must be supported by the declining percentage of producers, and it becomes easy to understand why some normally unflappable economists are dreadfully worried about the future.

The prospects would be more rosy if productivity were going up at a hefty pace—so that our dwindling percentage of production workers would be turning out goods at a pace sufficient to meet demands. But productivity growth in the United States is moving at a snail's pace. Capital formation available for increasing the efficiency of output is at least 25 per cent below that of 1955-1965 in comparable dollars.

This does not add up to a pretty picture. I agree with my friend that we can prevent a crisis some years down the road only if we throw away our rose-colored glasses.

Post-Christmas report: Why Santa sneezes

Christmas trees may be hazardous to your health.

This post-season, Scroogelike warning comes from a Canadian allergist, Dr. Derek Wyse, who reports that seven per cent of some 1,600 patients developed rashes and respiratory symptoms during the Christmas holidays. The ailments, he claims were directly traceable to Christmas trees.

According to Executive Fitness Newsletter, Dr. Wyse's investigations showed that the culprits were the same mold and pollen dusts responsible for summer allergies. When the trees were brought into the house, ragweed, sage and grass pollens that had attached themselves to the sticky bark of evergreens were released into the warm, dry, indoor air.

'Confidence' is catching on

By DON OAKLEY

The winter of the automakers' discontent appears to be turning into an early and prosperous spring.

The big three of Chrysler, Ford and General Motors, plus the little one of American Motors, are all now offering cash rebates of between $200 and $600 to auto buyers in an attempt to lift the industry out of one of its worst slumps since World War II. As a result, sales in the past few weeks have made a decided turnaround.

Another big boost is coming from hundreds of other companies, from banks and major manufacturers down to golf shops and clothing stores, who have instituted employee or customer rebate or discount plans based on the purchase of new cars. These are in addition to those offered by the auto companies.

For instance, the Beloit, Wis., State Bank will reduce finance charges for new auto loans by $100, or around 20 per cent of the typical amount.

Falcon Golf, Inc., of Ferndale,

Mich., will knock $200 off a set of golf clubs with purchase of a new U.S.-made car; and a clothier in Birmingham, Mich., is advertising a 10 per cent discount to anyone who has proof of a new car purchase, and the Detroit Red Wings hockey club will give two tickets to a home game to anyone who buys a new car from an area dealer by Feb. 28.

Sperry and Hutchinson Co. is giving 50,000 S&H stamps to any of its employees who buy a new car before March 31, and WPIX-TV in New York has announced it will run free television ads to promote auto sales.

The spark that ignited it all seems to have been struck last December when William W. Keefer, president of Warner Electric Brake & Clutch Co., and Rodney F. Ackerman, vice president of auto sales, were facing the bleak prospect of curtailing the company's output of air-conditioner compressor clutches for Chrysler and American Motors and laying off 10 per cent of their work force.

They decided to switch their attention from doom and gloom to searching for a positive idea that would perk up employee morale, help two major customers and stimulate business in local plant communities. They called it "Confidence in America."

On Dec. 16, Warner Electric proposed the program of cash rebates to Chrysler and American Motors. The rest is history.

Hunger story from the zoo

It isn't just the harried housewife who is being hit by rising food prices. Zookeepers across the country are also feeling the shopping pinch where groceries are concerned, reports the National Geographic Society.

For example, hay now costs $100 a ton, where not long ago it was $35. An elephant can shovel in 75 pounds of the stuff a day, along with eight quarts of oats and eight quarts of bran.

Horsemeat, which used to sell for 24 cents a pound now costs 57 cents, and your average tiger considers 22 pounds of it a good meal. Meat by-products once available free from slaughterhouses now carry price tags because of the demand.

Meal worms and night crawlers that cost $5 for a box of 500 a few years ago now cost $17. It's for the birds.

Crickets, fed to lizards, snakes and other small reptilians, recently went up in price another $1 per thousand. The price of dried flies has skyrocketed.

Fish that formerly sold wholesale for 17 cents a pound now costs 30 cents, and it takes 25 pounds of mackerel just to get an adult sea lion through the day.

At any age or size, there are few light eaters in the zoo.

A hippopotamus regards four heads of cabbage, five pounds of hay, half a bushel of potatoes and a few quarts of oats and bran as an adequate dinner. It now costs about $1,250 a year to feed a lion, and if anyone would like to sit down and discuss the situation with one of these hungry fellows—lotsa luck.

Smothers Brothers new character

Is the world ready for "Father Guido Sarducci?"

The Smothers brothers think so. They have introduced this unique "act" to nationwide television. He is a likeable, cigarette-smoking, hip priest who wears dark glasses and writes a gossip column for the Vatican newspaper.

Don Novello, who created and portrays "Father Sarducci," had been trying to portray the character on TV for several years but somehow things kept getting in the way.

Novello, 33, is a writer-humorist. He brought the character to life in 1972 in San Francisco, where he first faced TV cameras via a local ultra high frequency station. Novello says he has never had a complaint about his act either for his nightclub or television appearances.

Novello recalled: "Three different times ABC-TV called me to Los Angeles from San Francisco to tape a 'Sarducci' spot. Three different times I did it and three different times I was paid for it. But each time they backed out and kept it off the air."

When appearing as a continuing cast member on NBC Television Network's "The Smothers Brothers Show" (Monday, 7-8 p.m.), Novello looks and acts the European who has just arrived in America. Actually, he is a former advertising man who was born and raised in Ashtabula, Ohio.

In January of 1972, after five years as an advertising copy writer in New York City and Chicago, Novello quit his job and headed for California to try his hand at comedy.

He was appearing as "Father Sarducci" at the Comedystore in Los Angeles when comedian David Steinberg asked if he would like to try for a spot in the new show the Smothers brothers were putting together.

Tom and Dick Smothers took one look at Novello, talked to him about his other comedy ideas and signed him for their new comedy series. In addition to recurring appearances as "Father Sarducci," Novello appears as the man who talks back to the audience in skits which have subtitles beneath his face.

Novello, who holds a degree from the American Institute for Foreign Trade, says he acquired his many dialects while working as a tour guide in Europe prior to entering the world of advertising.

He is currently preparing a new character for "The Smothers Brothers Show." Says the shy, soft-spoken Novello: "He's an insane super-patriot."

Hang gliders love the art

The art and growing sport of hang gliding—soaring through the air with just a wing strapped to your body—draws Julius and his son, Gary, to Talcott Mountain, Conn., for a look at this flying phenomenon. WGN Television 9 viewers may see the results of their visit during "Go Fly a Kite" on "Outdoors With Liberty Mutual" on Saturday, from 1:30 to 2 p.m.

Man's age-old desire to fly like a bird is coming closer and closer to a dream-come-true. All over America and Europe men and women are learning to fly with a delta-shaped airfoil called the Rogallo Wing.

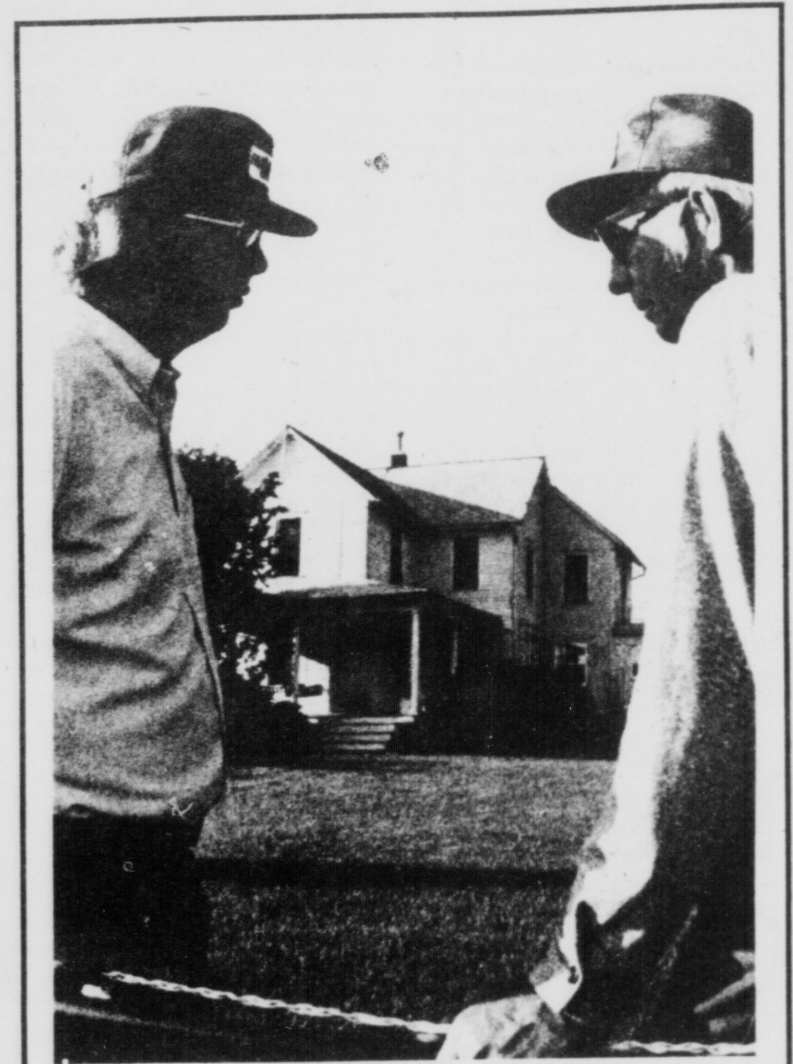

Success at hang gliding has been dramatically improved with this new, super-simple wing that is held in shape by the action of the air itself. With no moving parts, no fuel to burn, and no noise to suppress, the new wing seems like the perfect answer for today's environmentally concerned sports enthusiasts.

During the show, "Outdoors" also visits a hilltop near San Diego, Calif., where each weekend a covey of hang gliders are ready to test their wings against the laws of gravity.

Although hang gliders have been known to soar at over 15,000 feet, average practitioners don't seem to care whether the wing takes them three feet or 300 feet off the ground—they just love the exhilaration of free flight.

A FRIEND OF THE SMOTHERS BROTHERS— The man behind the costume is Don Novello, a quiet writer-humorist from Ashtabula, Ohio, who has introduced a unique "act" to TV— "Father Guido Sarducci."

The same Bacall, only more so

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — "Murder On the Orient Express" is what's called a movie movie — meaning that it's a motion picture in the old style, a film with a beginning and a middle and an end.

Fittingly, it is full of movie movie actors, including Lauren Bacall. It's her first film in some time and she's as welcome as the flowers in spring, tra-la. Since the picture is doing well at the box office, indicating a hunger for movie movies, maybe we'll be seeing more of them — and more of her.

"This was one of the few decent scripts to come my way in a long, long time," Bacall says. "I got to play an interesting woman. It's funny how 'Orient' has been misinterpreted by some people including that woman on The New Yorker, Pauline Kael. She didn't understand what it was all about at all."

Lauren Bacall started out her Hollywood career as a sex symbol, nicknamed The Look. At the beginning, there were few who thought she was a real actress, but she fooled them. She turned to the stage after the bottom dropped out of the movie business and established herself as a top actress.

Today, she still has the same slim figure, the same husky voice and the same tawny handsomeness she had when she was a teen-age discovery. Yet she is now a grandmother.

She's also still operating the same salty tongue, and, as always, she likes and dislikes with intensity. At the moment, the chief objects of her fine feminine fury are writer Joe Hyams and the income tax people.

"I'm very upset with Joe,"

she says.

She believes he is making capital out of his slim friendship with her late husband, Humphrey Bogart.

"He's got another book coming out on Bogie and me," she says. "I think it's terrible that our life has become public property. But I'm told there's nothing that can be done about it — that I'm a public person, public property."

"If that's true, there should be some reward, as well. Like not having to pay taxes."

She feels, and there's some justification for her position, that if her life belongs to the public, then she should be compensated for it in some public way. And, since she doesn't particularly like the way she's treated by the I.R.S., that's uppermost in her mind.

"Tax people are worse on actors than on most others," she says. "I tell them I have to have a mink coat for public appearances and some little tax man says that's tough. He says his wife would like to have a mink coat to go out in, too, so he disallows my claim. He says I can go out in something other than mink. He doesn't understand."

She's just warming up.

"The tax situation really galls me," she says. "I made a fortune out of 'Applause' but I don't have a quarter now. I wasn't able to spread my income out, like people can do in other fields. I think the whole thing is terribly unfair."

But she still enjoys life, taxes and writers aside. Home for Bacall is New York and there's a reason.

"After Bogie died," she says, "there wasn't much here for me. Besides, if I lived here alone, I know I'd become a beach bum. In New York, there's more for a single lady to do. Here in Hollywood, it's always a question of status — you have to live in certain places, drive a certain kind of car, wear a certain type of clothing.

"I like luxury as well as the next person, but I don't want to have to do things."

For a while, she thought seriously of settling in London, which she likes very much. Only problem was the inability of Americans to work there, because of restrictions. She enjoys London life but couldn't stand the inactivity.

After all these years, she's fully aware of both the good and the bad about the acting profession. And, weighing the one against the other, she says she'd still go into it, even knowing how rotten things can be some times.

"The joy of performing," she says, "is so special that it far outweighs all the bad things — and there are some very bad things. It's the most insecure profession in the world, for one thing."

All this soul-searching has been brought home to her lately because one of her children shows signs of wanting to act.

"Neither of the Bogart children is interested in the theater," she says, "but I think young Sam (Sam Robards, her son with Jason Robards) has it. He's 13 now and I definitely think he's going to be an actor."

"I'm telling him of all the pitfalls but I would never actively oppose him. I know how it is at that age — nothing could have possibly kept me from becoming an actress when I was a teen-ager."

Not even knowing about income taxes and writers. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

The Timeless Land topic of Ch. 9 National Geographic

Settlers in Australia's Outback think nothing of driving 100 miles to play football with a neighbor or flying a plane to check cattle on ranches twice as big as Delaware. In remote regions, children must be educated by radio. The doctor comes by plane. Only the fittest survive in the vast, casually defined crescent of grazing lands that surround the nation's interior desert. Dogged homesteaders profit or perish by challenging nature head on. They fight drought, rabbits, insects, poisonous plants, searing winds, and flash floods.

A 2,000 mile trek by four Australian from the bottom of the nation-continent through its primitive center to the top of Down Under will highlight "Australia: The Timeless Land," the National Geographic Special to be presented on WGN Television 9 Sunday, from 5:30 to 6:30 p.m. The unusual documentary, which focuses on the Outback and the hardy men carving civilization from the hostile interior, was produced by the National Geographic Society in association with Metro-media Producers Corporation.

The Outback's tortured terrain and blistering climate form one of the world's last frontiers. It is so dry that a single steer may need a square mile of grazing room. One 4-year-old boy cried in fright when raindrops splashed on his face. Born at the start of a drought, he'd never seen water fall from the sky.

But the bleak Outback masks hidden wealth—rich underground deposits of silver, copper, uranium, bauxite, natural gas, and oil. Mount Isa, an Outback oasis of 18,600, sits atop copper, lead, zinc, and silver ore deposits that average half a mile thick. Mount Isans enjoy air-conditioned homes and an Olympic-size swimming pool. Opal miners in Coober Pedy escape the heat another way—they live underground. Worked-out tunnels provide the only place where temperatures stay below a hundred. Some dugouts are "luxury" apartments with three rooms, but even the best homes attract snakes, scorpions, and spiders. One miner, convinced that Coober Pedy will soon be a big tourist attraction, plans to build an underground motel. His only concern: guests might gouge out the walls looking for gemstones.

In contrast, everyday amenities in remote cattle stations are few. Electricity is almost unknown. Fresh vegetables are a luxury. The typical corrugated iron homes are cold in the winter, hot in the summer. Hard work and dry weather create big thirsts. Aussies annually consume an impressive 25 gallons of beer per person. Normanton, with only 450 inhabitants, supports three bars.

In anticipation of his concert tour of the South next month, Lawrence Welk takes viewers on a musical tour of America with melodies about cities and areas across the land, on WGN Television 9 Sunday from 9 to 10 p.m.

Included in the spotlight are New York's Great White Way, Chicago, Indiana, Florida, Alabama, Texas, and Mississippi with "This Land Is Your Land" starting off the musical tour.

Tillman gets medical post

Dr. Paul Tillman, 115 Shady Lane, Dixon, assistant superintendent medical at Dixon State School for the past 15 years, has been named a diplomate of the American Board of Family Practice.

The certification of the Board of Directors came following an extensive examination. The specialty status afforded Dr. Tillman has been conferred in one of the 20 specialty boards now existing in the United States and the only one requiring its diplomates to present themselves for recertification by examination at required intervals. It is also the only board which at its inception in 1970 "grandfather-claused" no one.

Dr. Tillman earned his medical degree at Maximilian University, Munich, Germany in 1952. He served his internship and a residency in obstetrics and gynecology at MacNeal Memorial Hospital, Berwyn, during 1952-55. He was a cottage physician at Lincoln (Illinois) State School during 1955-60, during which time he obtained his full Illinois licensure. Since 1960 he has served as assistant superintendent medical at DSS.

Calculator can chase those April 15 blues

The income tax form—which used to give American taxpayers a chronic case of the April jitters—is beginning to look a lot less formidable. Not only has Internal Revenue simplified the form for ordinary mortals, but millions of Americans have armed themselves with the wizardry of the electronic calculators that at least take the drudgery out of tedious calculations involving addition, subtraction, multiplication, division and percentage.

With the prospect of a tax rebate in the offing, the taxpayer has an added incentive to get down to business. Additional encouragement comes from the new hand-held, low-priced calculators that help make even a math dunce walk like a giant; they provide the assurance that the figures are right.

To make this "taxing season" a little less burdensome, these helpful hints are offered on tax preparation:

1. Send for your free income tax guide. The IRS no longer charged $2.15 for such guides as "Your Federal Income Tax"

Attends conference

MADISON, Wis.— Russell Mosher, Dixon, was among nearly 200 Lutheran Brotherhood field representatives who attended a sales conference at the Park Motor Inn in Madison.

Mosher is a member of the Ronald Paluck Agency, headquartered in Moline. Members of 16 Lutheran Brotherhood agencies in Illinois, Michigan, Minnesota and Wisconsin attended the meeting.

and "Tax Guide for Small Business." They are available free at all IRS offices or by writing: Taxpayers Service Division, P.O. Box 450, Newark, N.J. 07101.

2. Start to prepare your tax return early. Don't wait until April 15 is right on top of you.

3. Once you have all your papers together, select a nook in your home where you can concentrate, thus avoiding annoying interruptions which could cause you to miscalculate (even with a calculator).

4. Make sure you have enough light to work under and don't begin your return if you know you have an appointment or scheduled meeting.

5. Don't begin your return when you're not feeling up to par and make sure you start at an early hour so that you don't become overtired.

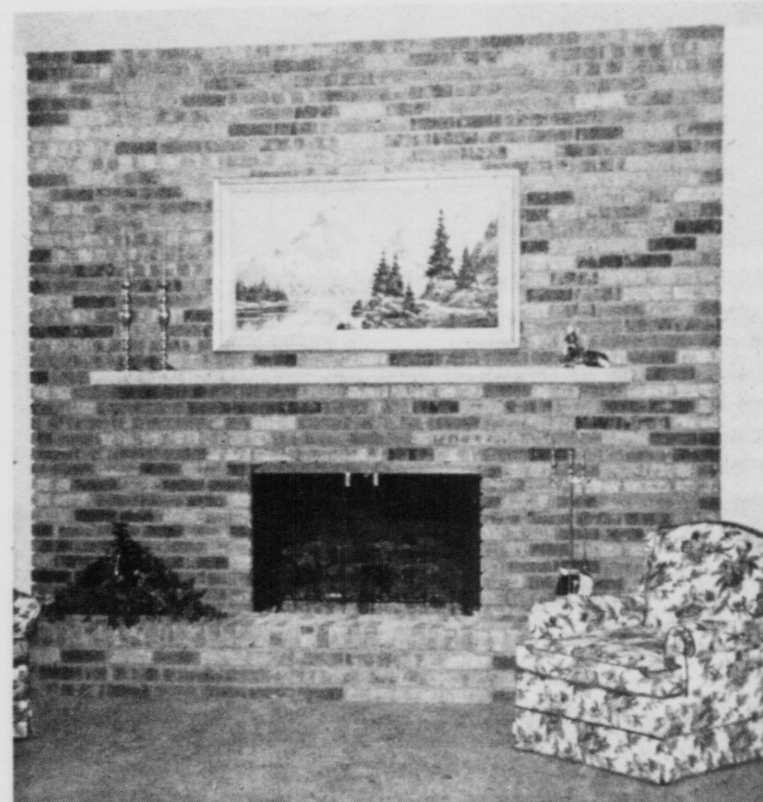

6. Select the proper form (1040, 1040A or whatever) to report your taxes. There are some situations where you are not permitted to use the short form, 1040A. Your income tax instruction booklet will spell out the details. For the average taxpayer, a basic four function calculator will do an admirable job.

7. All kinds of income received by you with specific exceptions are subject to tax. Make sure you keep all the proper copies as "proof of income." (Check your IRS guide book.)

Now, here's the good part, examples of income you should not report:

—Gifts, bequests or inheritances

- Social Security payments
- Dividends on life insurance and veterans' government insurance
- Life insurance proceeds upon death
- Workmen's compensation and similar payments
- Group life insurance premiums paid by employer (cost of group term over $50,000 is taxable)

PART OF the extensive remodeling program soon to be completed at Allen-Buckley Funeral Home; exceptional fireplace featured above.

Gets post in Hoo-Hoo club

Clarence E. Sandstrom, Mt. Morris, has been appointed state deputy for state of Illinois by the International Concatenated Order of Hoo-Hoo, a fraternal lumbermen's organization.

Sandstrom is associated with Wayne A. Oliver and Associates, Rockford, in the sale of lumber to lumber companies in Northern Illinois.

He was a two-term member of the International Board in 1961-62, and former president of the Northern Illinois Hoo-Hoo Club. He is also a former member of the Chicago Hoo-Hoo Club.

Player pianos are his thing

By ANDY LIPPMAN
Associated Press Writer
CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) —
For about $2,000, customers of Harry H. Garrison can make themselves a present of a piano that plays ragtime as well as the late Scott Joplin.

If they're orchestrally oriented
they can plunk down $7,000,
grab a handful of change and play their own nickelodeon.

If they want to wait until next Christmas, Garrison might be able to promise near-completion of a full-scale calliope for $20,000.

Modern pianos also are for sale in his shop, but Garrison would rather wax rhapsodic
about a 1905 Baldwin or a Steinway player.

In fact, he keeps the modern pianos in the back of his shop
while the classics get whatever place of honor there is in the crowded store.

"People in the 19th century had a great fascination for things mechanical," Garrison said. "The player piano grew out of that fascination."

"They came into their own about 1905 and when they were built they were designed to play for 30 years without breaking. By 1930 everyone who wanted a player had one. The Depression, coupled with radio,
the movies and the phonograph
just about wiped out the small companies."

Along with the decline in people who made players there has been a decline in the number of people who want to fix them.

Garrison says he has been fascinated by player pianos

since college. He also has surrounded himself with employees who for the most part have 30
or more years' experience working for Baldwin or Wurlitzer.

Garrison's dream is rebuilding player pianos and concert classics such as 1832 Chickerings and 1857 Lindermans and 1905 Baldwins.

"I'm good for 20 more years without training anyone, but some of these men have one foot in the grave," Garrison said. "In the future there are going to be few people who look on the idea of rebuilding a Chickering as a labor of love."

"People call every week for me to come to take away their old piano," the bewhiskered Garrison said. "We're working on 125 pianos right now and we don't have room for any more."

Garrison offers a comprehensive list of piano rolls.
What potential buyer could avoid signing on the dotted line
after pedaling his way through old favorites such as "I'm Knee Deep in Daisies (And Head Over Heels in Love)" or "They Needed a Songbird in Heaven
(So God Took Caruso Away)."

World at War

"BARBAROSSA"—Khair ed-Din (1466-1546); Greek-born Turkish corsair; the younger of two brothers who scourged the Western Mediterranean in the 1500s; commander of organized fleets of pirate ships; became high admiral of the Turkish Navy and devoted his life to ferocious and vengeful attacks on Christian ships and towns; captured Algiers, Tunis and Nice; plundered the shores of Italy, France and Spain; enslaved thousands of Christians; virtually ruled the Mediterranean (1541-44)." —Combinatin: Encyclopedia Britannica & American Heritage Dictionary of the English Language.

"Barbaross," the code name Hitler gave to his invasion of Russia, is the title of the fifth chapter of "World at War" which unfolds Sunday, Feb. 23, from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. on WGN Television 9.

June-December 1941—Germany attacked the Soviet Union without warning.

Milland: man of strong opinions

English-born Ray Milland is a man in the tradition of the old-time Redcoats.

Those British soldiers of a by-gone century would stand in a straight line and fire—and then stand pat as the enemy fired back. They didn't run and they didn't dodge.

That's the way Oscar-winner Milland deals with his opinions.

"This women's lib thing will never get to first base." Bam!

"Italy is a cesspool." Bam!

"France's national theatre, the Comedie Francaise, is the home of all the impossible acting in the world." BAM!

The 66-year-old former British cavalry officer, who has become one of the most respected actors in Hollywood (he won an Academy Award for his performance in "The Lost Weekend"), will be seen in "Ellery Queen," a two-hour motion picture for television which is to be colorcast on the NBC Television Network March 23 (7:30-9:30 p.m.) in the "NBC Sunday Mystery Movie" time period.

In off-stage comments during the filming of the show, Milland laughed at the idea that "Women's Lib" will change the world during the next 50 years.

"It isn't going to change anything," he said. "They haven't changed anything in 10,000 years and they aren't going to do it in 50. If the strong women's lib people did win it would be the end of society because there would be no more offspring. They don't want children—they want to drive trucks!"

He said he wasn't particularly worried about the problem anyway, "because there is just too much feminine instinct to make a nest."

Milland, who now makes his home in the south of France, said he'll always love California but can't stand the smog. So he moved to Europe.

"There's no smog where I live now," he said, "but we do have a serious water pollution problem because of what is coming down from Italy. That country has become a cesspool, and they have done nothing about it."

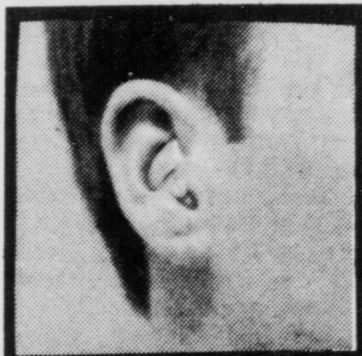

He likes the air in France, but doesn't think much of that nation's famed Comedie Francaise.

"If you look at motion pictures from all parts of the world you'll notice that the very best performances always come from the American actors," he says.

"There's a lot of chi-chi by the British Shakespearean ac-

Davis says he's out for stardom

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — "Never Can Say Goodbye" is a hit song played so often I've grown to hate it. I've even seriously considered tracking down the composer and throttling him.

It now seems I can't commit mayhem. ABC would beef, as the villain is Clifton Davis, the girl-chasing barber on "That's My Mama." Besides, he's a big fan of the late Nat King Cole, so he can't be all bad.

Davis, 29, may be a veteran of both the New York stage and Hollywood TV, but he's a rookie songwriter. He's only been a published tunesmith since 1969 and says he's written just 15 songs so far.

But the fast-talking, always-mugging native of Chicago says 1975 is going to be the year he makes his big push into music, both as a songwriter and as a pop singer in search of a hit record.

Davis, who never studied music and says he can't even read it, has sung in Broadway and off-Broadway musicals, but got in the songwriting dodge by accident.

He said he was in the chorus of "Hello, Dolly," when Judd Wolden, then writing music for a new show called "Raisin," asked him to sing some of the tunes for prospective backers of that musical.

One song was a gospel number. But Davis, a minister's son, thought Wolden played it as a jazz number. So the actor sat down at the piano and played the gospel according to Davis.

"He liked the way I put chords together," Davis recalled, "and when he heard me noodling around a little bit later on the piano, he said, 'Hey, what's the name of that song?'"

But Davis said he didn't get serious about tunesmithing until 1969, when he tried and succeeded in getting his first song, "Patience Is Rewarded," published.

His second published song, written in 1970, was "Never Say Goodbye." It was a 1971 hit for the Jackson Five and again a hit this year for singer Gloria Gaynor.

Davis, who says he's in the last year of a five-year contract with Jobete Music, the publishing arm of Motown, scoffs at the widely held notion that one hit makes a composer a millionaire.

"Royalties aren't that much," he says. "I get one penny off every record, so if she (Miss Gaynor) sells a million, I can make $10,000."

Niven thinks its wizardry

A haggard figure wearing a long, black robe which scraped the dusty floor, and sporting long, disheveled hair covering a hawk-like, wrinkled face, walked slowly to a TV monitor in a cavernous studio. He watched for a few moments and said—in the familiar, cheery voice of David Niven—"My, that's wizardry."

When two hands, joined by a clanking chain, removed the wrinkled face mask it was, indeed, Niven, wearing one of the eight outlandish disguises he uses as the star of "The Canterville Ghost," the "Bell System Family Theatre" special based on the famous Oscar Wilde story. It will be colorcast on the NBC Television Network March 10, 7-8 p.m., with a cast including James Whitmore, Audra Lindley, Dame Flora Robson and Maurice Evans.

The studio where the "wizardry" took place was in Bristol, England. Portions of the special also were taped at Berkeley Castle, located near the city.

In the story, the ghost Niven portrays, Sir Simon de Canterville, wears the disguises as part of an effort to frighten away the American family which has rented the castle Sir Simon has haunted for 300 sleepless years. Only one member of the family proves helpful to Sir Simon—Virginia, the pure-of-heart "Golden Girl"—played by English actress Lynne Frederick.

Niven's allusion to wizardry came when he saw himself seemingly doing something on the screen which he did not, in fact, do on the set: use the chain connecting his hands to knock down a bottle resting on a door-stand.

This was accomplished via the use of the Chroma Key electronic process. On a bare stage enclosed by temporary blue walls, Niven raised his hands to a prescribed level and shook the chain. At the same instant, a technician on another set knocked down the bottle by yanking at a hidden string. The two matched images were blended in the control room by director Walter Miller. The result: Niven is seen as a specter shaking his chain and knocking down the bottle.

Said Niven: "I've never seen this done before, let alone be involved in it. It is sheer magic." The slim, urbane star added that this was one of the few times he has watched one of his performances. He said: "I've looked at a small amount of television playbacks. I almost never watch my movies. I think I've seen eight of the 88 motion pictures I've been in since I began acting professionally in 1934.

"I can't stand to see what I've done. You work hard as an actor and do the best you can. After that, what can you do? It's up to somebody else to worry about it then, isn't it? Besides, I don't recommend worrying. It's a waste of time."

Niven said he tries to enjoy each day of his life whether he is working or not. "That's why I accepted 'The Canterville Ghost.' It is lots of fun with some rather touching moments, too. It's a marvelous story. I can never understand the movie they made of it some years ago. They had Margaret O'Brien, then 9 years old, as the female lead opposite Charles Laughton. It was ludicrous. Here, we are true to Wilde's story, which is as it should be."

HAPPY AS A GHOST—David Niven stars as the thwarted and sleepless specter in "The Canterville Ghost," a "Bell System Family Theatre" adaptation of the comedy by Oscar Wilde. It will be colorcast on the NBC Television Network Monday, March 10 (7-8 p.m. CST). Said Niven: "I took this role because it is lots of fun, with some touching moments, too."

The Mandara Mountain people

"Other People, Other Places" offers viewers an intriguing look at an unknown African people, the Kirdi of the Mandara Mountains, in "The Mandara Mountain People" on WGN Television 9 Saturday, from 1 to 1:30 p.m.

In the last century, when the Fulani, Moslems, from the north, launched their attack against all unbelievers, the Kirdi, among other tribes, fled for refuge. The fleeing tribes took cover in a vast area stretching from the upper Nile to western Africa. Living in isolation, they preserved their culture intact.

This film tells the story of the Kirdi, an African tribe living in the foothills of the Mandara Mountains. Here they have been able to maintain their own way of life, their customs, social structure, and political autonomy.

It also looks at their history, their flight from the Islamic crusaders, as well as the country of the Mandara Mountains and their crafts. While a high level of African art and handicraft has been preserved, it is now facing the inroads of modern civilization.

She yoddles up storm on Mickey Mouse Club

Nobody sleeps when Judy Canova opens her cavernous mouth to sing. Not that anyone would want to, especially her hosts, the Mousketeers, whom she will entertain with vocal gusto on Walt Disney's Mickey Mouse Club Tuesday, on WGN Television 9.

The Mickey Mouse Club is presented each weekday afternoon from 3:30 to 4 p.m.

The humorous hillbilly will share the spotlight with her singing-dancing daughter Tweeny. The two will belt out a couple of country songs with the "Doggoned" titles of "Hounds On My Track" and "The Dogies Danced All Night." Jimmie Dodd will organize the Mouse Club team into a chorus of yodelers and Big Mousketeer

Roy will conduct and fiddle a square dance on the Dry Gulch set.

Monday (February 24) — The County Fair will be given a rousing musical "hooray" as the boys and girls salute this all-American tradition with a round of songs and dancing. They also will organize an assembly line and wash and groom a pig in their bid for a blue ribbon. In the "Spin and Marty" episode, Marty is embittered because of his inability to participate in learning how to toss calves.

Tuesday (February 25) — Following the visit of Judy Canova and Tweeny, Mousketeer Cheryl will introduce the day's cartoon, "Bugs In Love," in which the inhabitants of a city junk pile convert the area into an amusement park. Jimmie Dodd will give a friendly lecture on how to treat a guest in the day's Doddism.

Wednesday (February 26) — The boys at the Triple-R ranch prepare for their annual rodeo and Marty, despite a bad wrist, learns to twirl a rope in hopes of participating in the "Spin and Marty" episode. "Gallop in Gaucho," the second cartoon Walt Disney made with Mickey Mouse, will be shown.

Thursday (February 27) — The four-man international tumbling act of The Amandis will somersault and handspring in the Mouse Club circus ring and do their incomparable humanbalancingfeats.

Many people are not covered by a pension program with their employer.

If you're one of them, there is now a tax-deferred way for you to build toward your own retirement fund.

With a Metropolitan Individual Retirement Program you can defer taxes each year on up to 15% of your income or $1,500, whichever is less, by putting this income to work to help assure your future financial security.

A pension is nice to look forward to. But if it's not in the cards for you, give me a call and I'll show you what Metropolitan can do to take its place.

Ask Dick Kleiner

By Dick Kleiner

DEAR DICK: Please advise if Andy Williams is still married? Separated? Divorced? Or what?— HUGH STORY, Mobile, Ala.

The status of Andy and Claudine Longet Williams is officially— separated. But they are very together for separated people. They've recently returned from a skiing trip to Gstaad, Switzerland, and, presumably, have gone their separate ways since they got back to Los Angeles. A friend says, "They're separated but they get along very well."

DEAR DICK: Will you please set me straight about Tony Orlando and Dawn. Every time I have seen the show, there are two girls. Which one is Dawn?— J. W. WILSON, Augusta, Ga.

They're both Dawn— collectively. Thelma Hopkins and Joyce Wilson were an act known as Dawn before they met Tony. When the three decided to combine forces they called themselves Tony Orlando and Dawn.

DEAR DICK: I'm having a problem on finding information on Jay Silverheels. So far, I've found out that he was Tonto on The Lone Ranger. I'm making a report on him for class and need more information. Can you be of any help?— CAROL CASSAGNE, Westwego, La.

But, of course. He's one of Hollywood's busiest Indian actors. He grew up on a Mohawk reservation in eastern Canada. His first triumph was in sports— boxer, wrestler, hockey and lacrosse player. He toured the U.S. with a lacrosse team and ended up in Los Angeles, did some stunt work and decided to stay and become an actor.

DEAR DICK: I just read a manuscript titled "The Antenati," which has been sold to Putnam and been re-titled "Damon." I understand it has been sold for a movie. I've also heard that the author, C. Terry Cline Jr., from Mobile, has a wife, Linda, who has also sold a book for a movie. Is this true?— ARLTON PAIGE, Mobile, Ala.

I have been flooded with letters from Mobile about the Clines and their successes. And it's all true. Producer William Castle has bought "Damon"— for $350,000— which is about a four-year-old boy (Castle will make him 9 or 10) with adult sexual powers. "It's in bad taste," Castle says, "and I'm trying to lick it without making it a 'Deep Throat'." And Linda Cline's book, "Weakfoot," has been optioned by the Disney studio for either a movie or a two-part TV show.

DEAR DICK: I recently saw a movie called "Them" on TV. James Arness and James Whitmore made it in 1954. My husband said Carroll O'Connor was in it. Could you please let me know if he was? I said he wasn't.— SHARON CADEAU, Toronto, Canada.

You're right. O'Connor couldn't have been in a '54 film— he made his first movie in '62.

DEAR DICK: What's the age of Redd Foxx of Sanford and Son and when and where was he born?— MRS. A. DE LALLO, English Center, Pa.

Foxx was born in St. Louis, Mo. That's definite. The date is less definite. Officially, his birthday was Dec. 9, 1922. There are some who doubt that year. It makes him 52.

DEAR DICK: Will Michael Landon go back on Bonanza if it returns to TV?— NORMA JORGERSON, Olney, Mont.

Not much chance of Bonanza coming back. Anyhow, Landon has himself a hit with Little House on the Prairie, so he's very happy where he is.

PRO AND CON: Some weeks ago, in response to a question, I said I didn't think Carol Burnett's show was vulgar. Lots of mail on that one, split about 50-50 between yes, she is vulgar and, no, she isn't. Typical letters:

DEAR DICK: You've got a lot of guts (saying Carol Burnett isn't vulgar). When a TV performer wraps her legs around a man and gyrates her hips, it's not childlike innocence. Why are at least three organizations trying to get her off the air? Her program is considered vulgar in decent society. Show your real guts by printing this.— J. F. KUZYN, Dearborn, Mich.

DEAR DICK: I enjoy (Carol Burnett's) show and I always say if someone doesn't like it just switch the dial. No one is making anyone watch the show.— MRS. B. WILSON, Scarborough, Ontario, Canada.

The Sensible Solution

A recreational therapist in a nursing home is tricky! Watch her! Her "tricks" get shy, retiring people involved and active in body and mind. Thanks to her, a loved one can enjoy life.

The sensible solution to the problem of care for the elderly and the chronically ill is a nursing home where interests and needs are given special attention.

Johnson-VanLanduit wedding vows

WALNUT — St. Mary's Catholic Church was the setting for the Feb. 8 marriage of Miss Sharon Ann Johnson, daughter of the LaVern Johnsons, Walnut, to John Eugene VanLanduit, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert VanLanduit, Tampico.

The wedding was performed at 2 p.m. by the Rev. Eugene Parker, pastor of the church, and Dr. Eugene Spradling, pastor of the First Christian Church. Vocal selections by Miss Becky Carpenter, Normal, and Mrs. Eric Forman, Glen Ellyn, were accompanied by Mrs. Jesse Watson, organist, and the service was preceded by a vocal number by the bride's mother, and was followed by a solo sung by Alfred DeGap.

Altar Flowers
Decorations featured altar arrangements of purple, royal blue, Emerald green and ruby chrysanthemums and pom-poms.

Given in marriage by her parents and escorted to the altar by her father, the bride was attired in a floor-length gown of ivory silk trimmed with Alencon lace, Venetian lace and ruffled chantilly lace. The gown's A-line skirt, accented by a lace-trimmed hemline and a chapel train, was topped by an empire bodice styled with a lace yoke, a high neckline and Victorian sleeves ending in lace cuffs. Ivory satin ribbon encircling her waistline formed a back-bow with attached streamers, and her elbow-length mantilla of imported illusion was edged with lace. Atop a Bible, which was carried by her mother and sister at their weddings, was a colonial bouquet of Phalaenopsis orchids, white roses pom-poms and foliage.

During the double-ring ceremony, a unity candle imprinted with the couple's wedding invitation, was lit by the bride and bridegroom.

Miss Denise Johnson, maid of honor, wore a purple and orchid knit halter gown complemented by a short velvet jacket, and identically-styled costumes in royal-blue and pastel blue, Emerald green and Nile green, and ruby-red and pink were worn by the matron of honor, Mrs. Larry Greuter, sister of the bride, and the attendants, Miss Sue Stone and the bridegroom's sister, Mrs. Randall Etheridge. Their headresses were picture hats matching their gowns, and their flowers were variegated chrysanthemums and pom-poms.

Miss Kayla Johnson, who was her sister's junior bridesmaid, wore a similar costume of sugar-beet and lilac, and the flower girls, Miss Cara Lee Johnson, sister of the bride, and

Quilt collection viewed by Phidian Art Club members

Mrs. Patterson Curtis presented a program entitled "Art in Needlework" when the Phidian Art Club met Tuesday afternoon in Loveland Community House.

Born in Springfield, Mrs. Curtis has been a resident of Dixon since 1960. She attended Illinois Wesleyan University, Bloomington, where she majored in accounting, and she is the mother of two sons.

She defined needlework as "a gift from us for our loved ones," and among the many forms of needlework, Mrs. Curtis chose her favorite, "quilts," for her program.

Patchwork Quilt
Quilting originated centuries ago, but the patchwork quilt is considered an American folk art. American patchwork patterns came from a desire to express meaning with shapes and colors, and the lack of money and new material was no obstacle, as many were made out of worn out clothing.

In the beginning of American history, the patchwork quilt was practical, and was needed to protect the settlers from bitter cold winters. In 1750 quilting in the eastern part of America was as highly developed as it was in the west in 1850. By 1840 new materials were available in the East, and American manufacturers were producing colorful cottons in red and green. However, the pioneers on their way west, still used discarded clothing.

Young girls pieced quilt tops and put them away until they were of marriageable age. When their engagement was announced, materials needed to complete the quilts were purchased. Women from neighboring farms were invited to assist with the quilting. They quilted in relays and it was not unusual for them to finish three or four quilt tops in a single day. An evening meal was prepared, and the men were invited to join the quilting bee for music and dancing. It was a time for pleasure — and a time for courting among the young

MR. AND MRS. JOHN E. VanLANDUIT

Dear Ann
by Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I am 76, alone and have been blessed with good health and God's love and mercy. Last week I realized I should rewrite my will. Am I too old to give my body to whatever agency can make use of any part of it? How do I contact the appropriate people?

I have seen the beauty of the world, the kindness of people, the sweetness of innocent children and the adoration in the eyes of my beloved late husband. Can someone perhaps benefit from my eyes or parts of my body? Please advise me, Ann.—A Great Grandmother

Dear Grandmother—and you ARE great: Bless you for your good sense and eagerness to contribute to humanity. You need a Uniform Donor's Card and instructions. Please write to The National Kidney Foundation, 116 East 27th Street, New York, N.Y. 10016.

Eyes and kidneys are urgently needed. There are long waiting lists for both. Just think how wonderful it would be if you could give sight or added years to a stranger after you have departed this world! I urge all who wish to do so to make use of the address at once.

Dear Ann Landers: A few years ago Ogden Nash wrote a poem about you. In that poem there was a very funny line about a fat girl. I clipped the poem but misplaced it. Will you please tell me what that line was before I wig out? Thanks, Doll.—Reader In White Plains

Dear Reader: That "funny line" appeared in an Ogden Nash poem based on a letter in my column. A young woman had complained that her boy friend was unromantic. Nash quoted the gentleman's compliment to her: "You sweat less than any fat girl I know."

Thanks for asking me to repeat the line. Ogden Nash was one of my favorites.

Dear Ann Landers: When my husband announced, after six years of what I thought was a good marriage, that he was leaving me to enjoy the freedom he felt he had been denied, I was shocked and confused.

I blamed myself for having failed him. He assured me that such was not the case. He insists there is nobody else. I believe him. He wants to go off on his own and review some problems he has been unable to resolve. Of course I am heartbroken, but I decided it would be best to let him go.

I don't want a man who doesn't want to share my life. I have a good job and don't need his financial support. If he wants to send me money, fine. If not, that's okay, too. I am praying he will come back, but if he doesn't I won't curl up and die. I will make another life for myself.

Several of my friends are so furious they refuse to speak to him. I think this is unfair. If I'm not mad, why should they be? The point of this letter is to say I wish my friends would stop pitying me and asking me how I can tolerate such abuse. I'm handling the problem in my own way and I'd appreciate it if they would leave me alone. Sign me—Making It

Dear M.I.: You owe no apologies and no explanations to anyone. When your friends offer sympathy or counsel, simply tell them to buzz off. You didn't ask—and you might tell ME to buzz off—but my hunch is that you're better off without the guy.

Dixon Evening Unit meeting

Mrs. Dave E. Evans, 408 Marclere St., will entertain the Dixon Evening Homemakers Extension Unit at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, and will be assisted by Mrs. Harry Dean and Mrs. Colin Schroeder.

A major lesson on "Arthritis — Our Leading Crippler" will be presented by Miss Ruby Nattress, and members are asked to bring an old valentine to display during roll call.

Polly's Pointers

Polly's Problem
DEAR POLLY — I wonder how many others have trouble with polyester thread getting tangled and knotted when trying to sew by hand. The only help I have found is to moisten my fingertips and run them over the thread. Maybe someone else has come up with a better answer that she would share with us. — ANN

DEAR ANN — Anyone who sews knows how annoying this can be. I, too, would be most interesting in learning a good solution. All I do is use a shorter thread than usual or thread the needle with the end of thread coming off the spool. Then I cut off the desired length. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — I get so peeved when I see a price tag on something in a store that shows it to be part of the ticket from a previous sale. It is obvious that the article was sold at a lower price even for a short while. If this is necessary why not use some method that is not so obvious? — LOIS

DEAR POLLY — Bertha S. can keep bananas for a week or more if she puts them in a brown paper bag and then in the refrigerator. Many years ago there was a radio jingle that went "Never put bananas in the refrigerator" but I find this is just not a fact. Do not ask me why they will keep in a brown paper bag but they do. — CECIL

DEAR CECIL AND BERTHA S. — We heard from many other brown paper bag users, but wholesale produce people I talked with still stick to the jingle referred to by Cecil. They say not to put bananas in the refrigerator but on a counter or in a room where the temperature is not under 60 degrees or above 72-75 degrees, as then they will "cook." However, the "banana" people say to ripen green bananas at these room temperatures and then bananas can go into the vegetable crisper. The skin will turn brown but the fruit will not rot if you use the bananas within two or three days. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — All my candles were badly bent and sagging because of the heat. While cleaning my silver candleholders I accidentally dropped one of the candles into the warm water I was using to wash the silver. I forgot about it until I emptied the water and found the candle was very clean and soft. I rolled it around on a smooth flat surface and restored it to its original shape. I then placed the candle in the refrigerator to harden and, of course, did the same to all the others and ended up with candles as good as new. — MRS. J. B. H.

DEAR POLLY — Does your bathtub get slippery when using bath oil? If so, try filling the tub with water first, wet the sides well and then add the oil. The oil sticks to dry surfaces so this way you, not the tub, get the benefit of the oil. — MRS. M. L. C.

Squash is good in any season

By AILEEN CLAIRE
Squash was another food item known to American Indians long before European seafarers touched this continent's shores. Always a delight for summer eating, squash also goes well with winter dishes.

Among the best of winter squashes is the butternut squash which is sweet and nutty. It usually is served boiled and mashed with butter and seasonings. For an easy but special treat, whip up a Butternut Squash Souffle to accompany your favorite pork or chicken dish. This is a recipe that vegetarians will enjoy, too.

BUTTERNUT SQUASH SOUFFLE

2 cups cooked, mashed squash
1/2 cup dark corn syrup
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
1 teaspoon salt
Dash nutmeg
Dash pepper
3 egg yolks, well beaten
3 egg whites, stiffly beaten
1-3rd cup chopped nuts, optional

Mix together squash, corn syrup, grated lemon rind, salt, nutmeg, pepper and egg yolks. Stir in stiffly beaten egg whites. Spoon into ungreased 1-and-one-half quart baking dish. Set into pan and fill pan with hot water almost to top of dish. Bake in 350 degree oven until knife inserted in center of casserole comes out clean, about 1-and-one-fourth hours. Garnish with a circle of chopped nuts, if desired. Makes 6 servings.

(Note: Mixture may be baked in a 9-inch pastry shell. Bake in 400-degree oven 50 minutes until set and knife inserted in center comes out clean.)

Rock River Garden Club's interpretation of flower show

Members of the Rock River Garden Club met Monday in Loveland Community House for their annual interpretation of the World Flower Show, which is scheduled for April in McCormick Place, Chicago.

Club members were divided into groups of four to work on assigned designs included in the flower show schedule.

The theme for this year's Illinois Garden Club section of the show will be "Love," and the following titles were assigned in the Artistic Design Division:

"Handsome Entry Extends Loving Welcome," an exterior decoration for a white door to be displayed during a Spring tour of homes.

"Presidential Proclamation—Today Is Love Day," an artistic arrangement suggesting an amicable adjustment of the problems of the world by America through love. Dried wheat and barley in the arrangement symbolized America's part in helping to alleviate starvation.

"Match Results in Love Set" was an assemblage of flowers, tennis balls and a tennis racket with a tennis net as the background.

"Smile on the Flowers," an arrangement of dried flowers preserved by the club members who designed it. The flowers were placed in a clear glass dome on a marble-top stand.

"Love for Sale" was a collage of flowers, hearts and sweets incorporating the word "Love" and items selected to depict various meanings of the word.

"Love Helped Build America" was an arrangement of native and garden-grown plant materials which had been naturally dried and left untreated. It was displayed before a piece of weathered barn siding.

"Love of Memorabilia Inspires Designers" was a still life arranged on a blue and white patchwork pillow which also held yellow flowers and articles made by early American craftsmen.

"Romance Culminates in Church," a large floral entry to be used for a small country wedding in a church of the 1800's.

"Love Is a Many Splendored Thing," a table setting, stressed color coordination, and featured miniature rosebuds in a cupid container.

"Love of the Good Life" was an elegant table setting for a dinner party. A white lace cloth covered the table, and crystal lovebirds flanked yellow roses and candles arranged in a silver candelabra. "Love Binds a Family Together" was also a table setting depicting a farm home in the early 20th century, and the arrangement used combined field flowers.

"Anniversary Party for Lovers," was a romantic table setting for two. A pink floor-length cloth covered the table, which was centered by a bouquet of pink flowers.

Harold Cook, Dixon florist, commented on each entry and expressed the importance of reading and carefully following a flower show schedule as it is presented. He also displayed some flowering branches he had forced into bloom, and gave the clubwomen instructions for the procedure.

Mrs. David Ames Sr., chairman of the afternoon's hostess committee, was assisted by Mrs. Edward Lawton Jr., Mrs. Wilbur Stern, Mrs. Clyde Yount Jr., and Mrs. Arnold Brooks.

Time to try diamonds first

By Oswald & James Jacoby
If West could have seen all the cards, he would have opened his singleton club and South would have had no play for the spade slam. Fortunately for South, West led the queen of hearts.

South won, looked over dummy and saw that he had 11 top tricks. One simple way to play the hand would be to draw trumps, cash dummy's ace of clubs, come back to his hand by ruffing a diamond and lead a second club. That would bring home the contract, unless East had started with the guarded king-jack of clubs, which is just what he did happen to hold.

A little bit of sound thinking showed South that there was no hurry about trying clubs; he could go after diamonds first and make a 12th trick if that suit broke 4-3.

Therefore South cashed one high trump to see that no one held all five, led a diamond to dummy, ruffed a diamond, entered dummy with the nine of trumps, ruffed another diamond, drew the last trump. He tried the club finesse to see if he could make seven and claimed the contract after that finesse lost.

Heart Drive Sunday in Paw Paw

PAW PAW—Mrs. Charles Marks will be co-ordinating operations for the Heart Fund Drive in the village of Paw Paw on Sunday.

Volunteers soliciting donations for this drive will be the two area 4-H clubs, the Wyoming Indians and the Wy-Lee.

Diseases of the heart and circulatory system touch the lives of everyone. At present rates, one out of every two Americans will eventually die of cardiovascular disease. With the help of contributions real progress is being made. Heart-lung machines make it possible for surgery within the heart. Over 50,000 such operations took place last year.

Cardiopulmonary resuscitation makes it possible to restart hearts and restore breathing. There are new drugs for treating high blood pressure; pacemakers; artificial heart valves; synthetic artery grafts—the list is endless.

The Heart Association provides public education to reduce premature death and disability due to lack of knowledge; professional education for continuing education of physicians, nurses, and paramedical personnel; and community service including heart screening programs, blood pressure clinics, heart information service, rehabilitation clubs, and instruction on cardiopulmonary resuscitation.

Public aid costs soar despite assurances

By BARRY HANSON

Associated Press Writer

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) —

Despite assurances by the Walker administration that the contrary, the amount of money the state spends on public aid is climbing like a rocket.

Consider these statistics: —The number of Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) cases reached an all-time high of 211,361 in Illinois last month. This followed a steady decline from 210,309 last March to 205,000 in December, according to figures supplied by James L. Trainor, acting director of the Department of Public Aid.

—Although Illinois ranks fifth in the nation in population, as of June 1973 it ranked third in the number of families receiving AFDC, the largest welfare category.

—The General Assembly appropriated $1.52 billion for welfare in the current fiscal year, which ends June 30. That is the same amount of money that was needed to run the entire state government of Tennessee in 1972 and is more than the amount needed to run many smaller states.

—At least an additional $170 million is going to be needed to make welfare payments in Illinois between now and July, the department estimates.

—Sen. Don A. Moore, R-Midlothian, chairman of the bipartisan legislative committee that oversees public aid, has said he understands that the department may ask for $1.8 billion for the next fiscal year. However, Joel Edelman, former DPA director and now executive director of the legislative committee, has said that if the rolls continue to increase that $2 billion might be needed next year.

Public aid is a sprawling, maze-line system of grants for the poor, families with no father, the aged and crippled and sick. It is financed from tax money collected at the federal, state and local levels of government.

In 1950 the public aid budget was $110 million. By 1960 it had climbed to $230 million and by 1970 it was $670 million.

When Gov. Daniel Walker unveiled his proposed budget last March for the current fiscal year, he said less than $1.5 billion would be needed to finance public aid—only $718,100 more than appropriated the previous year.

"I believe we have turned the corner on controlling public aid costs," said then-director Edelman. "The upward spiral in caseloads is flattening out and we have indications that it may be on a downturn."

Illinois Focus

Others were not so optimistic. By May, Comptroller George W. Lindberg was predicting that the department would need at least $100 million more than the governor had requested.

Trainor, who had just taken over the department after Edelman resigned, conceded in early September that the deficit might indeed be as high as $100 million unless "an intensive effort" could be made to purge the rolls of ineligible recipients.

Meanwhile, the General Assembly passed an appropriation for the DPA that included a 10 per cent cost of living increase for all welfare recipients.

Walker used his amendatory veto power to cut $21.3 million from that appropriation, saying the state could not afford that much of an increase. He said a 5 per cent cost of living hike would be sufficient.

But in the fall veto session, the legislature overturned Walker's veto and restored the full 10 per cent increase.

Before the legislature acted on Walker's veto, Trainor upgraded his estimate of the anticipated shortage in the DPA budget and said $130 million more would be needed just to take care of the 5 per cent increase.

"A 10 per cent increase, along with such unknown factors as increased unemployment, continued escalation in Medicaid costs and federal withholding of funds because of ineligibility would push the additional figure much higher," Trainor said in November.

The sudden increase in applications last month, the largest in any single month in the department's history, was blamed in a staff memo to Trainor on "the high unemployment rate and general economic downturn which began last fall."

But even with a steady decline in recipients in the largest welfare category during the first half of the fiscal year, the anticipated $170 million supplemental appropriation will mean the state is spending nearly $200 million more for public aid this year than past. And a turnaround in that trend is not on the horizon.

One reason for this is that the fight to purge the welfare rolls of ineligible is going poorly.

The rate of ineligibility has gone up from 12.9 per cent in October to about 15 per cent in December, the latest month for which figures are available, a department spokesman said.

The federal government has threatened to reduce its share of welfare funding in states that don't reduce their ineligibility rate. The DPA spokesman said Illinois must try to reduce its ineligibility rate to 3 per cent by July 1.

Vote canvass at Steward

STEWART — School Board members canvassed results of the Feb. 15 school tax referendum, which won passage by a narrow margin, 116 to 103, during their Wednesday meeting.

The 35-cent tax increase in the educational fund brings that fund to $1.27 levied against each $100 in assessed valuation and brings the total school tax levy to $1.71.

Revenues generated will bring in $197,200 to the district.

Board members approved issuance to tax anticipation warrants up to $7,000 with moneys to be paid back with the first installment of real estate taxes received.

The superintendent was instructed to begin work on the 1975-76 budget and school calendar.

In other action, the board approved a progress report card for kindergarten students.

Clint Conway, Lee County Special Education director met with the board to discuss the proposed building and remodeling program at the Eldean special education facility.

CASE C-683: Dr. Ruth Holloway is a famous black educator who has been handling HEW's "Right to Read" program.

"The schools," she concludes, "are not meeting the kids' needs!"

She then reports that her surveys indicate youngsters of sixth to twelfth grade ages, still can't read fourth grade material!

Here are some more of her challenging observations:

(1) Black boys are most seriously affected for 20 per cent are unable to read as compared with five per cent of white boys.

(2) Most of the non-readers come from families with incomes of less than $3,000 per year.

(3) These non-readers are not dropouts but are the regularly enrolled pupils in public schools.

Even if their parents aren't making over $3,000 per year, and assuming the youngsters lack ambitious mothers, those children should still be good readers!

For those kiddies have been exposed to public schools five days per week, where teachers should offset those uncultured home backgrounds.

Wasted Taxes

Our taxes are thus being squandered by the billions on public schools that aren't producing the proper manufactured "product," which is children who can read easily!

But what is wrong? Either the teachers don't know how to teach!

Or they are employing the wrong methods!

And-or they are being hamstrung by lack of authority to police their own classrooms properly.

Here in Chicago our five Crane children attended the Bradwell Public School in the Windsor Park residential area.

But a new "fad" in teaching had replaced the "phonic" method, so the pupils weren't required to know their A-B-Cs or how to break words into syllables and then pronounce each syllable.

Instead, the stupid "look-say" innovation had swept America, whereby youngsters were taught to look at a printed word, such as "elephant" and then say "elephant."

But they couldn't hyphenate that word, if they wished to break it at the end of a printed line, for the didn't know the syllables.

Thus, they were unable to split it into its parts and thus pronounce "el-e-ph-ant."

As a result, if a child saw a new word, such as "encyclodia," he couldn't even try to pronounce it, for he didn't even know how letters of the alphabet were sounded!

But under the phonic method, a child in second grade who had never seen "encyclopedia" before, could still pronounce it by separating its syllables and then uttering each one, as "en-cy-clo-pe-di-a."

Nowadays, we professors find many college students who can't break up a word into its syllables!

So Mrs. Crane and I had to pay our Chicago taxes to the schools, yet then "undo" the bad teaching of our five Crane youngsters!

We used the "flash card" method outlined in the booklet below.

Mothers, if you have half the ambition of Abraham Lincoln's mother and his stepmother, make SURE your kiddies read easily!

Motivate them by use of the comic strips in this newspaper! Let them read such material aloud, in exchange for your doing the dishes.

And reduce the "ear-mind-ed" effect of TV in favor of "eye-minded" training via good comic books and inspiring children's stories.

Send for my booklet "How to Raise Your Child's School-marks," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of the Dixon Evening Telegraph, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs, when you send for one of his booklets.)

The Rev. Witmer is new pastor in Mt. Morris

MT. MORRIS — At a recent council meeting held by the members of the Church of the Brethren, the Rev. Richard Witmer, Pleasant Hill, Ohio was called to serve as the new pastor of the local congregation.

Witmer is a native of Ashland, Ohio. After graduating from high school there he went to Washington D.C., where he was employed for ten years as a map printer in the Interior Department's Geological Survey of the U.S. Government. He also enrolled in classes at the American University on a part-time basis.

It was while working in Washington that he met his wife, Margaret Renalds, Broadway, Va. In due time, the Witmers decided to dedicate their lives to the work of the church, so they moved to McPherson, Kan., where he enrolled in the Brethren College there and completed his college education. In the spring of 1965 he was graduated with a BA degree in Philosophy and Religion.

During this time, Witmer also worked as a newscaster for the local radio station, and served as supply minister at the Conway Springs Church for three years.

From Kansas, the Witmers moved to Oak Brook, where he enrolled in the Bethany Biblical Seminary. He received his Master of Divinity degree in 1968. While at Bethany he also served the United Church of Christ in Genoa, as their Youth Minister. Following graduation he spent the first summer as Educational Program Director for Camp Blue Diamond in Pennsylvania.

REV. WITMER

In September 1968, the Witmers located at Pleasant Hill, Ohio, where they have served the local church at that place for the past six and one-half years.

The Rev. and Mrs. Witmer and their two youngest children Diane, 8 and David, age 3, plan to arrive in Mt. Morris about the middle of April. The oldest children, Lynn, age 17 and Candi, age 15, will remain in Pleasant Hill to complete their school work. Lynn is a senior and will be graduating from high school this spring. Candi is a freshman.

During this interim, the pulpit is being filled by students from the Bethany Biblical Seminary and John Masterson, chaplain at Pinecrest Manor.

The Lord's House
... a Treasury of Man's Noblest Aspirations
in Religious Architecture

Standing in a land of gigantic church towers: Ulm Minster - the world's tallest - 529 feet high; the Cathedral of Cologne - world's second tallest - 512 feet high; and Strasbourg, 466 feet tall, there is a little-known edifice which deserves special consideration.

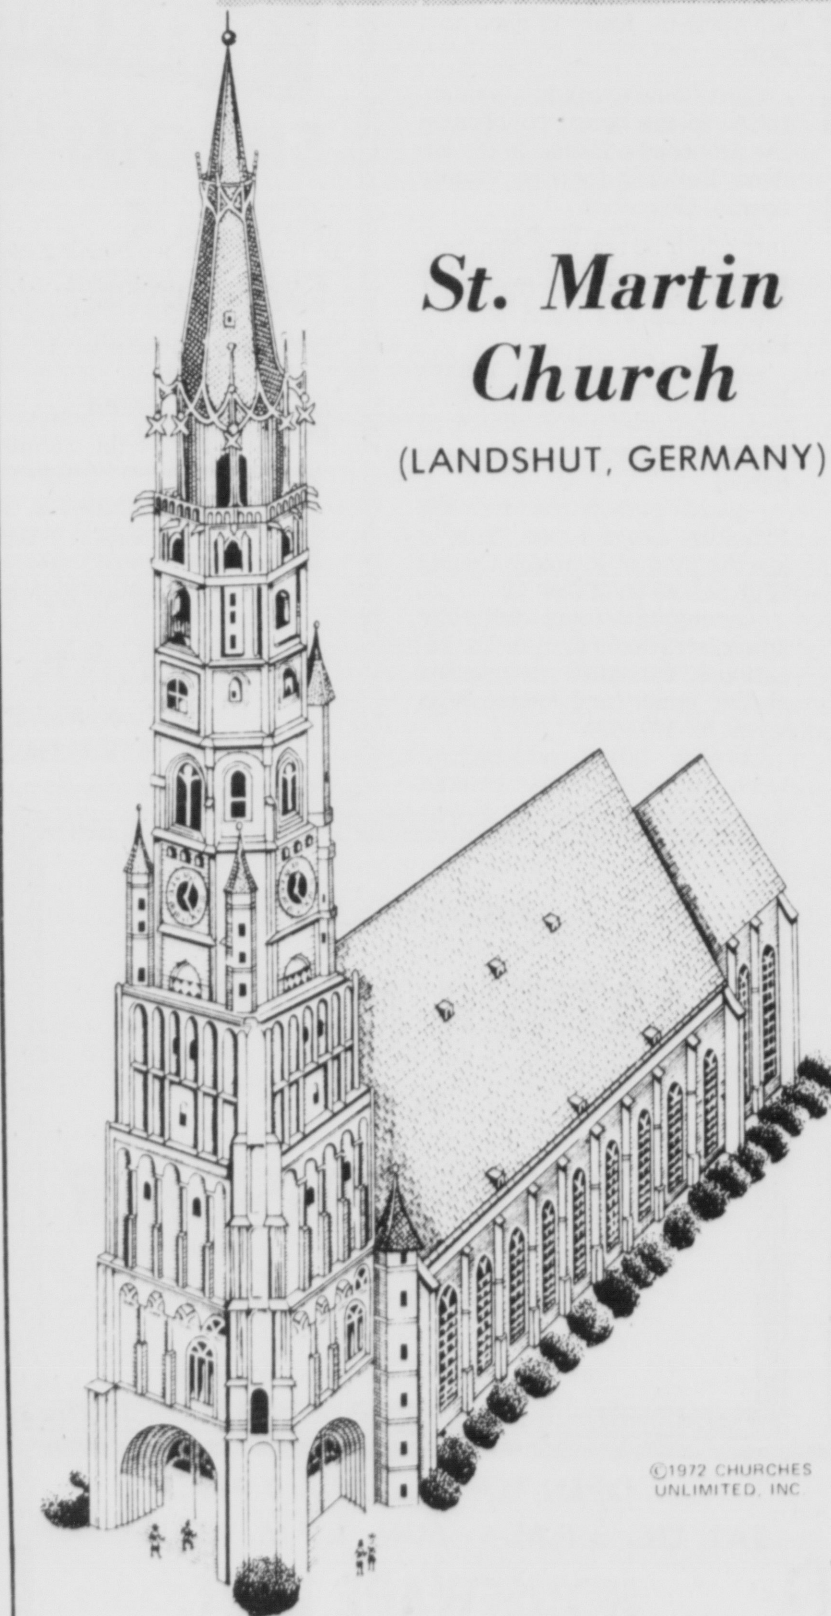

Unique among the church spires of Christendom is that of St. Martin Church in Landshtut, Germany. Rising 435 feet above the picturesque Bavarian city, the spire is the highest BRICK tower in the world. Since several other major edifices were also built of brick, it is assumed that either there was an abundance of brick available in that locality, or that stone was in scarce supply.

St. Martin was completed in the year 1500, although the church itself was built by the townspeople between 1389 and 1432 under the supervision of the master architect, Hans Steinhilber of Burghausen, Germany. He is buried in the church.

The single tower is one of the outstanding features of Late Gothic architecture. During this period towers no longer were erected in groups, at various heights, to adorn a church; instead, a solitary tower was built at the front of the church and sent up to an unprecedented height.

Helping to support the spire of St. Martin Church are 22 slender pillars which one sees inside the church. Each of the pillars is 89 feet in height. They contribute to the beauty of the interior which is regarded as highly characteristic of the Late Gothic style.

Visitors also admire the church's stone pulpit and canopy which date from 1422. On the left side of the choir-arch is the heroic size figure of the Madonna carved by Hans Leinberger. The statue is one of the most important German wood carvings of the transition between the Gothic style and the Renaissance. Within the choir arch is a wooden crucifix made in 1495 that is four times life size.

Warren Walder

"Dixon has no critical problems. There are many areas in which remedial efforts are needed. These are:

- "A. Downtown business district
- "B. Surface water drainage
- "C. Separation of storm and sanitary sewer systems
- "D. Additional street resurfacing
- "E. Further integration of services between city and rural fire departments
- "F. Removal of iron and rust from water system

"Before priorities can be established the solution first must be determined and the funds made available. After this, the priority will sometimes establish itself.

"We need a new City Hall. The present building is unsafe and studies show it would be uneconomical to renovate. Our downtown business district could well use the impact of this new construction, our building trades persons can surely use the employment and the present location lends itself well to further improvement of our downtown.

"Each of the city departments operates most efficiently. Dixon is fortunate to have top quality employees who take an interest in their work and satisfaction in doing it well. We also have many volunteers who serve on boards without pay who administer other services not mentioned in the question such as the hospital, emergency vehicle services, water department, library, planning and zoning, airport and building department. Each of these have loyal employees who do their jobs well."

Mrs. Irene Hays

"I feel the most pressing problems facing Dixon are public apathy, lack of growth in business and industry, zoning, lack of city bus service, and bad drinking water in various parts of town.

"The way to cure public apathy would be to involve the public in civic affairs by asking for and accepting their advice and help on the many matters facing the city.

WARREN E. WALDER

"We need to actively seek new business and industry to locate in Dixon. There are some coming soon, but I believe we must constantly seek more. Of course, we would need more housing, more public interest and less government restrictions.

"Zoning is a mass of city codes tangled up in the city ordinances which supposedly takes a Plan Commission to guard. This appointed plan commission does not special uses and zoning changes as it sees fit, knowing that while they are only supposed to recommend, the City Council will not over rule their decision. This is unnecessary control of the people that results in decreased housing, limited town growth (leading to higher taxes), and slow death for any town.

"Dixon needs a city bus service (preferably privately-owned) especially now with EPA, fuel shortages, and rising fuel prices. With more citizens on low or fixed incomes and the locating of housing for the elderly farther from town the need becomes greater. A bus service would have a favorable effect on the downtown traffic and parking situation.

"The bad water situation is a disgrace to our town. If the water company is not already working to correct it the city must see that necessary steps are taken to insure good drinking water for all our citizens.

"It is easy to find fault with someone else with the way they run their department. It is another thing to come up with a ready solution to their various problems without sitting in their seat. I realize there are many problems in each department but it would be unfair to pick up on them in particular until a deeper study has been made. With all the publicity about the streets, I feel I should comment on this. The street department is involved in extensive street repairs to be completed over a period of time. I wish I could tell you I intend to resurface all the streets in town without raising taxes. However, you and I both know this is not possible and I am against making rash political promises that we all know cannot be kept.

"The finance department, in an effort to do a better job more efficiently, has gone to a computer system of bookkeeping. This was necessary to provide better efficiency and less room for error, because without accurate books you cannot know where you stand.

"Crime in other towns has increased more than here in Dixon and I feel that this is a compliment to our police department. The fire department handles a double job of fire protection and ambulance service very well. However, this department would do better if they had immediate access to all their equipment. Right now they have equipment housed in another building blocks from the station. The sensible solution to this problem would be a bigger, more efficient station.

"The sewer department at first glance seems to have a serious problem. But, if you will look again the problem is not so much with the sewer as with the people. The people are the ones throwing the wrong things down the drain causing the sewer to back up on their neighbors. There seems to be another problem though. This one involves power outages at lift stations. Although this does not happen very often, it is too often. Good sanitation should take priority over cost.

"The people of Dixon may rest assured that as long as the city is involved in the finances of Oakwood Cemetery that it will continue to be cared for properly.

"As far as city hall is concerned I am not in favor of city officials bulldozing anything through against public opinion. I am against closing Hennepin Avenue for any reason, especially to build city hall there. I would rather see the present city hall remodeled."

Mrs. Hays and her husband, Raymond, reside at 815 Washington Avenue. They are the parents of four daughters, Mrs. Beverly Derksen, who lives in Montana, and Cheryl, Virginia and Marcia, all of the home.

Mrs. Hays, 37, was born in Sycamore but moved to Dixon as a girl and has remained here since that time.

William L. Naylor

"I am running for Mayor of Dixon because I feel that it is time for a change. The working man's views have too long been overlooked.

"My goals, if elected, are to see that our streets are improved. Our cars are literally being shaken apart by the deplorable condition our streets have slipped into. To provide a systematic plan to help eliminate the severe flooding conditions that exist in certain areas of the city, step up efforts to join the city and rural fire departments, with a department on each side of the river, to provide the fastest service possible to citizens in an emergency.

"If we accomplish this, then we should remodel the present City Hall. And finally, as a working man myself, I can appreciate the 'tax bind' we all face, that is why I will carefully watch and try to control all city expenditures. If elected, I would ask every citizen to actively voice his opinions.

"I am being endorsed as a candidate by the Dixon Building and Construction Trades Council.

"The Finance Department seems to be doing a good job but can't be positive without seeing the actual figures.

"The Police Department is doing a fine job but should crack down on the speeding being done in residential areas which is dangerous to our children.

"Oakwood Cemetery—Ed Slain and his crew are doing a good job and with more funds could improve the grounds.

"The Sewer Plant seems to be handling the needs of the city effectively.

"The Street Department does a fine job, with the equipment they have to work with, keeping the streets clear. Improvements are needed in patching of streets and sidewalks and the cleaning out of gutters.

Patrick Hess

"The business district, parking, traffic flow, and public transportation; youth activities and recreation; streets, senior citizens, ecology, and expansion are our biggest problems.

"The business district of downtown Dixon needs renovation but the problems of the business district cannot be solved by mere renovation. A lack of parking facilities during peak shopping hours and the congested traffic resulting from shoppers searching for parking space have reduced the desirability of the downtown area. A public transportation system could serve the dual purpose of reducing the parking and traffic congestion and providing low cost access to the downtown area for those people who do not presently have such ready access (especially the elderly who, usually on a low income and located far from town, now depend mostly on more expensive taxi service).

"I do not feel that a new City Hall should receive the priority which it has been given at this time. Continued use of the present facilities at this time would be best. A new expanded fire station should be built to house city and rural and the City Hall expanded into the present fire station.

Nine candidates for commissioner express their views

Arthur M. Tofte

"I don't feel the city of Dixon has any pressing problems but we do have things that we must keep abreast of.

"The Peoria Avenue bridge is a very important item and I believe this project will be started and hopefully be completed this year.

"The sanitary and storm sewer separation is well under way and this project should be completed as planned.

"I feel the fire stations on the north and south side should be considered an A-1 priority. The Fire Department like most other city departments is a service department and the time factor in getting to the emergency is most important. Some needed equipment can not be purchased for the fire department because of the already cramped quarters and the door size at the present fire station.

"I would like to see our street improvement program expanded. The continued patch program is not the answer. I would include curb, gutter and sidewalks in this.

"The flood control program is under way and plans have been made to relieve some of this problem. I am in favor of doing more in the years to come because this problem will continue to grow and we must keep abreast of it.

"To help the downtown parking I still feel we should completely re-do the Snow-Bean blossom parking lot and make it a two-hour-limit lot, with no meters. I would also like to see the recently purchased Scrivens building made into a parking lot and possibly this could be a two-hour, no-meter lot.

"I have placed the City Hall project last because I feel this is the least important and not as important to the citizens and the betterment of the City of Dixon as the other projects I have mentioned.

"The City Hall project should only be considered after the other projects I have mentioned are well under way and we are positive the money is available."

A veteran of 12 years on the council, Tofte is married. He lives at 611 Assembly Place. He works at Dixon State School in the powerhouse.

He and his wife are the parents of two sons, Arthur III and George. They have two grandchildren.

J. Gary Cooper

"In my own opinion Dixon as a whole is a very peaceful and serene community, one that can be proud of its people. Why is Dixon struggling to maintain its population level of 1970 when it should be growing by leaps and bounds?

"There seems to be several economic opportunity reasons for this, one being a lack of new large industries moving into Dixon offering higher wages and more jobs. This in turn makes Dixon less attractive for new and bigger retail establishments to make their home. Without either of these how can we grow and better ourselves. We have to go out and search for these employment offering business and show them that Dixon is an excellent place to relocate.

"Another priority problem of the City of Dixon is the question of a new City Hall. Anyone that has visited our City Hall can not help but see that the building is badly cramped for space and in dire need of repair. I feel we do need a different City Hall, but not necessarily to the extent of building a new City Hall. The possibilities of moving the Fire Department and expanding and remodeling the present City Hall should be explored first. Another possibility to investigate would be relocating City Hall to a building presently vacated.

"Evaluating each of the city departments efficiently is very difficult, having never held a city office previously. I can only go on hearsay and personal observation as a citizen as to the strengths and weaknesses of our present city departments.

"I must say I have heard nothing but praise for our finance commissioner and his department. The Police and Fire Departments are always striving to better themselves for the betterment of the community. Concerning Oakwood Cemetery and the street department I would like to see better communications established.

"You must remember that as a first-time candidate, all I have to judge our system by is what I see on the surface. After being in office there may arise aspects to each of these questions which may influence my opinions to change, but one can only know this after being duly elected and serving his community as a commissioner proudly. As a former president of the Dixon Jaycees, I have proven my willingness and desire to work vigorously and wholeheartedly for the betterment of our community.

Thomas Densmore

"I am a lifelong resident of Dixon and a graduate of the Dixon Public Schools. I received a Bachelor of Science degree from Illinois State University in political science with a specialization in State and Local Government.

"I am outrightly opposed to the expenditure of funds for building a new City Hall in Dixon. After looking at the existing facility, I would agree that something needs to be done—but in my estimation remodeling would be sufficient. A good City Hall is made of met-not bricks or concrete. These hundreds of thousands of dollars could be spent to benefit a majority of Dixonites rather than the few who actually enter City Hall.

"Some of Dixon's more pressing problems I view are: 1. A very non-appalling business district; 2. Poor streets, curbing, and sidewalks; 3. A type of city government that allows for the mayor and all commissioners to live on the same block; 4. Parking meters; 5. Public transportation for the elderly; and 6. Limiting the mayor to two terms in office.

"When Dixon's business district is compared with some shopping districts in the surrounding area it is just not competitive. I am in favor of the removal of all parking meters downtown and would favor further study into the idea of making First Street and Hennepin Avenue a shopping mall prohibiting automobile traffic and beautifying the area. This, to me, would be money more wisely spent than building a new City Hall. Parking meters, in my estimation, lose more dollars for the merchants by deterring business, than they make for the city.

"I realize that not all city streets and sidewalks can be repaired tomorrow, but we need a much more organized and advanced plan of repair. It is very sad indeed, that a city as progressive as Dixon must have streets as poor as we currently have.

"Dixon's form of city government as it is currently structured is not very representative. It allows for the mayor and all commissioners to come from the same area of town, making it difficult for problems in all areas of town to be heard and understood. I would be very much in favor of studying a way which would require the government to be more representative of all the people.

"I also feel that sometimes Dixon's elderly have been forgotten. I feel it would be feasible for the city to rent or lease a bus similar to the one used by the merchants at Christmas. This bus could be used solely for the purpose of transporting the elderly or handicapped downtown. If done only once or twice a week, it would at least be more attention than these people are currently receiving from the city government.

"I am very much impressed with the amount of continued education our police and firemen receive, and would be very much in favor of continuing or even increasing this practice."

James Dishman

"I consider as some of the more pressing problems of Dixon:

- "A. Decreasing number of retail establishments in business community.

"B. Need for more housing at low and middle income levels.

"C. Sewer and drainage problems, streets and curbs, zoning changes.

"On a priority basis for solving these problems, I believe we must work with the retail merchants, Chamber of Commerce and all others who have an interest in retail sales in Dixon, for sales tax revenues will have quite an impact on some of the other problems we face and how soon they might be resolved.

"I feel that a new City Hall building is necessary for the following reasons:

"A. It is not practical to remodel the present structure with the view in mind that such repairs and changes would serve the needs of the city for the next fifty to one hundred years.

"B. It could benefit the downtown development.

"C. It would make better use of revenue sharing funds since it is the type of expenditure which serves all of the community, but occurs only once in a hundred years and does not require additional tax money.

"My evaluation of the City Departments:

"A. I would list as the strength of all the Departments (Finance, Police and Fire, Public Property, Streets) as being the personnel of each and their willingness to cooperate not only within their own departments but between all other departments as well.

"B. As for the weaknesses, I think that the buildings housing the various departments have limited their efficiency somewhat.

"C. The lack of necessary funds to improve the roads at Oakwood Cemetery is probably the most noticeable weakness.

"As for a solution, we are presently working to relieve our building problems in the Street, Fire and Finance Departments. This completed, perhaps some funds will be forthcoming for the roads at Oakwood.

Henry Osback

"I offer my opinions as follows in order of highest priorities as Dixon's most pressing problems:

"a) General deterioration of Dixon's physical plant, such as streets, sidewalks, curb, gutters, sewer lines both sanitary and storm and flooding conditions

"b) Downtown business area, low shopper level

"c) Keep city employee salaries competitive but within revenues received

"d) Attracting new industries

"I do not feel a new City Hall is needed. The present one should be refurbished and air conditioned. The Fire Department could be moved into the Scrivens Building, making more room available for other city departments and giving the Fire Department more room.

"My appraisal of other city departments:

"a) Finance—the heart of everything, without it nothing functions. This department has a record of living within its means and providing service to its citizens within its resources; we should continue doing this.

"b) Police and Fire—Police Department is in good shape; not in need of any major projects. Fire Department needs larger quarters and should be thinking about trading in the oldest piece of fire equipment.

"c) Oakwood Cemetery—in good shape, except for the roads which badly need resurfacing.

"d) Sewer Plant—plant is fairly modern and adequate for today's needs. New type of plants being built, known as "pure oxygen," has many advantages over our aeration type plant. We should be looking into this type plant to see if it could be adapted to our existing plant, provided it isn't too costly.

"e) Street Department—garbage collection system is okay, but we are burying a great deal of energy each day at the landfill. This could be converted to either steam or electrical energy and used to attract new industries to Dixon. The Street Department does a very good job of ice and snow removal and sweeping of streets. It does a poor job of patching existing streets and cleaning of catch basins."

Wesley McClanahan

"Dixon's most pressing problems are:

(1) The storm and sanitation sewer problems that we have in certain areas of the city, namely southeast and northeast sections of the city.

(2) Upgrading streets, curbs, sidewalks, parking lots, also repairing streets in Oakwood Cemetery, and keeping them that way.

(3) Upgrade downtown facilities to make them more attractive to the public and divert some of the business going to neighboring shopping centers.

"I am not in favor of a new City Hall. Upgrade the existing one, move out the fire station to another location north and south of the river. Convert present station facilities into office space or whatever is needed.

"In the Department of Finance, I think this profit sharing money could be used to a better advantage by remodeling the present City Hall and using some for the fire stations.

"Police and Fire Departments are adequate and doing a real good job, as far as my knowledge is concerned without having closer contact in those departments.

"Sewer and Street Departments I think should be improved in the most urgent areas as fast as revenue funds will allow.

"I want to see the city run in the black at all times under monies received through normal receipts, not depending on profit sharing or other anticipated windfalls which may come to a screeching halt at any time.

"With all the new factories, housing subdivisions, etc., adding extra property tax money, plus any new business revenue we might obtain through the toll road system, we should be able to operate the city and maintain all facilities to the betterment of the entire community. With no raises in property taxes or any new taxes."

Jim G. Burke

Jim G. Burke sees as the city's top problem the lack of an adequate underground storm drainage system and the separation of sanitary and storm sewer lines.

"For the last six years, we have been budgeting $100,000 per year for sewer line construction and replacement and unless we are awarded some unexpected grant money, this program will probably continue along the same lines regardless who is on the City Council," he states.

Burke simply states "yes" to the need for a new City Hall.

"Outside of the Street Department, I don't believe I can sufficiently list all the strengths and weaknesses of the other city departments but I will make a few comments," he observes.

FINANCE—"In my almost eight years on the council, the city has operated in the black every year. I believe it is a priority to continue this policy."

POLICE AND FIRE—"When I hear people criticize the police department because of their feelings about a policeman or the chief, I always express the following thoughts: You may be correct in your judgment about a particular person on the force or you may not but the main question is what kind of a police department do we have? We have a police department that is well trained, does a good job, and is free of corruption. We can't ask for any more than this. In reference to our fire department, our low yearly fire loss reflects the rigid inspection system instituted by the department."

DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC PROPERTY—"Our well kept cemetery and our sewage treatment plant, which is one of the most modern in the state, are big pluses for the city."

STREET DEPARTMENT—"

"our street department, under Supt. Charles Sterricker, has functioned quite well. We have one of the lowest garbage collection costs of any city in the state. We have well trained personnel operating heavy equipment, which means our employees can handle jobs which some cities have to farm out. Our snow removal program is outstanding. Although there are always some problems, our crews hit the streets as soon as the snow starts falling and they do an efficient job. While we constantly upgrade our equipment by purchasing a new truck or some other piece of equipment every year, I believe we need to modernize the department even more by acquiring maintenance equipment for storm sewer cleaning, leaf pickup, street maintenance, and curb replacement. I would also like to see more schools and seminars for our employees."

Rich Arnould

"Dixon's most pressing problems in my estimation are flooding and drainage, new fire station and the city streets.

"The solution to the flooding and drainage is installation of more and larger storm sewers. Dixon can either build a new fire station or build a substation on the north side.

"Everybody knows the streets in Dixon are in poor condition and the only solution is repairing some each year as the budget permits.

"I am not in favor of building a new City Hall. I think the present building can be rejuvenated and used for many more years.

"As far as I can see the Finance, Police and Fire, Cemetery and Sewer plant, and the Street Departments are operating reasonably efficiently. I do not agree with the city employees doing union work on the new city garage, however."

Walter Lohse

"Dixon's most pressing problems, in the realm of council responsibility, are to help prevent deterioration of the downtown business district; finalize separation of the sanitary and storm sewer system; upgrade curbs, gutters and deteriorating streets; housing and drainage.

"The council should work within its financial capabilities to revitalize the downtown area in cooperation with business and merchant leadership.

"We can accomplish the sewer separation within the state's deadline by continuing to allocate necessary motor fuel tax funds each year until the job is completed.

"The streets, curbs and gutters will be solved if we continue to implement Commissioner (Jim G.) Burke's step-by-step plan as fast as motor fuel tax funds are available to do so.

"After several years of serious consideration of all the alternatives to building a new City Hall, my conclusion is that the only long-lasting, and in the long run, most economical, solution is to construct a new City Hall. Revenue sharing funds have been set aside for it and the project would not require the use of any property tax money. I am not convinced, however, that the closing of Hennepin Avenue would offer the site for it.

"The finance department uses computerized, efficient procedures with an excellent staff (half the size of some similar-sized Northern Illinois cities.) Temporarily idle funds are kept fully invested. The physical layout at City Hall is inconvenient to the public, inefficient for operations and unsafe. A new City Hall would solve our physical problems.

"The police and fire departments are top-notch operations, with excellent personnel. Policemen and firemen are undergoing continuous training. It is a heavy financial drain to maintain or expand the quality of personnel and equipment in these departments, however, I feel these are the highest priority services to the citizens.

"As with other city departments have fine operating forces at the sewage treatment plant and Oakwood Cemetery. Our sewage plant is very modern with good capacity. The plant is in some need of new equipment and there is a constant need to comply with state requirements. Oakwood Cemetery roads need resurfacing and ways must be found to keep maintenance costs down.

"The street department has experienced crews who react promptly and efficiently in the time of need. We have good equipment and communications. Our refuse pickup programs are great. There is a need to keep on top of curb, sidewalk and chuckhole repairs before they deteriorate into major problems. We must do this with limited funds."

Fall banquet has fallen

By MIKE CUNIFF

The annual fall Dixon Boosters Club Sports Banquet will become as extinct as the passenger pigeon after the Boosters Club voted Thursday night at its bi-monthly meeting to allow each coach of a sport to have a separate banquet for his or her athletes.

Space and time were the determining factors for the switch. The past November, over 650 people jammed the Dixon High School cafeteria to honor the DHS athletes and cheerleaders from the fall and summer sports.

Although the banquet was run smoothly, the enormous amount of awards, athletes and people present made the recognition each athlete received slight. Even the dividing of the session into a football and baseball section in Lancaster Gymnasium, while the cross-country and golf teams received their awards in the cafeteria did little to add emphasis to the individual attention.

There also was little time for a coach's assessment of the season, especially at the underclassmen level, mainly because so many sports and athletes were involved. Chuck Vail, Dixon High School athletic director, suggested to the Boosters Club Thursday night, "To leave to each individual coach and the parents of each sport at DHS the responsibility of a banquet for the members of the team to receive their awards."

Vail made his comment because of the mushrooming of the sports at Dixon High School. Girls sports have added another 65 names to the athletes, with 30 in volleyball and 35 in basketball. Bowling, a first-year sport, has 24 members. Swimming has 16. Fencing contributes six. Wrestling, with cheerleaders included, runs around 80 while basketball—complete with cheerleaders and pom-pom girls—numbers about 95.

The sum is about 300. Add another 600 parents and the 900 in total, plus guests of the banquet, swells the number to a figure which would swamp the cafeteria. The easiest solution was to have each sport responsible for its banquet.

Financial help will be forthcoming from the Boosters Club which voted to contribute $1 for each student attending the awards banquet of his or her respective sport to help defray the cost of the meal.

Ron Pierce, Boosters Club president, said, "If the coaches come and participate at the Boosters Club during the season at which their sport is active, when the time comes for that sport's awards banquet, the Boosters Club will give $1 per student for each athlete, cheerleader, pom-pom girl or helper the coach feels donated to his program during the season."

The helpers would include mat maids, managers, equipment men and trainers. Originally, a 50-cent donation was discussed by the Boosters Club but the $1 was passed in a vote of the members. Each coach will be requested to send in a list of all athletes and other students involved in his program, prior to the banquet, so the $1 figure can be authorized.

With each sport having its own banquet, more time can be utilized for individual recognition and coaches' comments concerning the past season. The meals can be potluck, at a restaurant or wherever, depending on the coach and the parents of the athletes.

Several of the smaller sports could easily combine their talents for a night to honor a couple of groups of athletes. Certainly, the fencers and swimmers, for example, could have a combined banquet with only a total of 22 athletes.

Kathy Faley was at the Boosters Club meeting to display the trophy she won by taking first place in the Women's Foil under-16 division at Portland State University last weekend. Faley, in nine fencing matches, scored 36 touches, while being struck only five times.

In the opening round, Faley won her four matches 4-0, 4-0, 4-0 and 4-3. Then, in the final round, she won 4-0, 4-0, 4-1 and 4-1. Other fencers in the meet were from California, Washington, Connecticut and New York.

Kathy then fenced in the under 20 division and was eliminated in the first round. "The competition was a lot tougher," she explained, "most of the fencers have four years' experience and the age level permits even sophomores in college to compete."

"If I had won the under 20 division, I would have qualified automatically for the nationals. Unfortunately they don't count the under 16 division towards the nationals. Now, I will have to place in the top three in the state meet, then place in the Midwest Sectionals to be held in Cleveland. If I can place there, I earn a chance to go to the nationals in Los Angeles in June."

The Dixon Dukes, all alone in third place with a 5-4 record in the NCIC, travel to Forrest Tabor Gymnasium in Rock Falls tonight for a conference game with the Rock Falls Rockets. The varsity contest begins at 8, preceded at 6:30 by the sophomore battle.

Rock Falls is 4-5 in the NCIC and 9-11 overall. The Rockets will start four sophomores and senior center Dave Broderidge (6'5"), who averages 17 points per game. Broderidge is the only player left from the squad of a dozen which beat the Dukes 54-48 on Jan. 11.

Other starters for the Rockets include 6'11" Marty Bollman and 5'10" Dave Peugh at guards, plus forwards Don Thompson (6'2") and 6'11" Gary Corzett. Bollman and Thompson have been averaging 12 points a contest since being elevated to the varsity five games ago.

Brian Boesen made the second team while Jim Verbout was Honorable Mention for the only placings the Newman Comets earned on the All-Illowa basket team for 1974-75.

In baseball arbitration

Carew and Fosse lose

By The Associated Press

Rod Carew and Ray Fosse are baseball's latest recession victims.

Carew, the American League's 1974 batting champion, and Fosse who didn't even hit his weight, were joint arbitration losers Thursday. Meanwhile, Ted Kubiak, Fosse's Oakland teammate, and St. Louis pitcher Ray Sadecki won their salary squabbles.

Taking their pitches to binding arbitration today are Oakland slugger Reggie Jackson, Atlanta's Ralph Garr, the National League bat king, and Bernie Carbo of the Boston Red Sox. Meanwhile, decisions are expected in the cases of Los Angeles third baseman Ron Cey and Minnesota pitcher Bert Blyleven.

Minnesota's Carew reportedly made $95,000 last season, was offered $120,000 and sought $140,000.

"I'm disgusted," he said when the ruling came through.

"Now I know what kind of organization the Twins are. They don't consider me a superstar. I'm just a number."

And that number is . . . $120,000.

The Fosse and Kubiak cases gave Oakland A's owner Charles O. Finley a 3-2 edge over his money malcontents. In Oakland, it seems, A is for arbitration.

The 210-pound Fosse, who batted .196 last season, had asked for an $18,500 raise while Finley offered the same $50,000 the catcher received in '74. Finley had said that "if I lose that case, I'll get out of baseball."

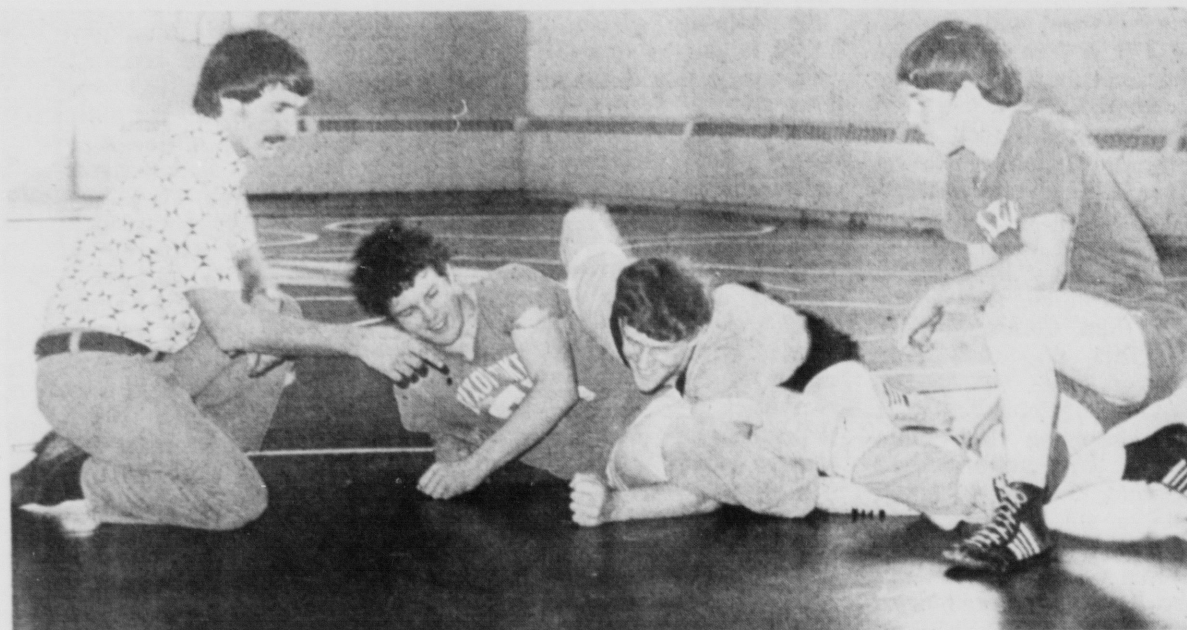

Fosse missed almost half the season when he suffered a back injury while trying to break up a clubhouse fight between outfielders Jackson and Bill North.

Kubiak, a utility infielder, won his fight for $42,500 against Finley's offer of $37,000.

Sadecki, a 34-year-old lefthander who was traded from the New York Mets to St. Louis after the 1974 season, asked $55,000 while the Cardinals opted for $48,000. He was 8-8 last year with a 3.41 earned-run average.

Jackson is bidding for a $160,000 contract with Finley offering a $5,000 raise to $140,000. Garr reportedly wants $100,000 with the Braves offering $80,000.

Satisfied without arbitration Thursday were outfielders Bobby Murcer, Garry Maddox and Von Joshua and pitcher John D'Acquisto of the San Francisco Giants and pitcher Hank Webb, first baseman Ed Kranepool and outfielder Benny Ayala of the Mets.

Sectional wrestling at Dixon

Bob Pinegar, Mike Allen and Gary Magnafici need to win three matches each this weekend to earn the right to advance to the Illinois Class AA state meet at Champaign next weekend. The three Dukes are part of a 96-man contingent that will compete in the Dixon Sectional which begins today at 7 p.m. in Lancaster Gymnasium.

Pinegar, 28-0-2 at 185 pounds, meets East Moline's Todd Thorp (13-12) in his first match. Ron Semetis, Dixon wrestling coach, commented Thursday afternoon, "I'm high on Pinegar's chances. He is undefeated after four months and it's hard to get up for all 30 matches."

"Pinegar's toughest match should be Pat Jensen of Washington, who should beat (Tom) Sturdivant (of Central). Newman (Ben) of Richwoods will probably come out of the other bracket."

"Mike Allen at 167 has a shot at it," Semetis continued, "although he must be considered a dark horse because of his five losses. Several others have better records, like Jesse Bean of Metamora (25-1), but he's in the top bracket. We'll know how well Mike will do when Ben wrestles (Steve) Papke of Rochelle, whom Mike beat last week."

"Gary Magnafici is just a sophomore at 132 and this is his first time wrestling in the big time, but he showed a lot of composure and poise in winning the District. If he uses good moves and doesn't make many mistakes, his sophomore determination will enable him to give it his best."

"If Gary wins his first match, he will meet one of the better boys—Dan Carlson of East Moline—in the semifinals." Carlson is 28-2 for the year.

"Tickets for Friday's round, plus the semifinals at 1 p.m. and the championship contests which begin at 6 p.m. on Saturday, will be sold on a first-come, first-served basis. The first and second place winners of each class advance to Champaign."

Flyers tie Sabres

By The Associated Press

"We seem to have Buffalo's number," Philadelphia Coach Fred Shero said. On Thursday night, the number was an even dozen.

The two National Hockey League teams, division leaders known for explosive offenses and tight-checking defenses, showed plenty of the former and little of the latter, failing their way to a wild 6-6 tie in which Philadelphia spent most of the night playing catch-up.

In the night's only other NHL game fans a "Guaranteed Win" whipped the Kansas City Scouts 6-3. In the World Hockey Association, Baltimore beat Vancouver 4-3, Chicago topped Toronto 4-3 in overtime and San Diego defeated Quebec 5-2.

"Actually," Shero said, "the Sabres give us a better game than anybody else in the league. When you play Buffalo, you know you've had a hockey game." It was the Flyers' ninth straight game against Buffalo without a loss, a streak dating back nearly two years.

Reggie Leach's 40-foot slap shot at 4:13 of the third period capped Philadelphia's final comeback, coming just 21 seconds after Brian Spencer had put the Sabres on top.

"We just go out and play our game and don't worry about the other team," said Bobby Clarke, who scored two of the Flyers' goals.

Canadiens 6, Scouts 3

Defenseman Guy Lapointe scored two goals and Frank Mahovlich had three assists to lead the Canadiens past Kansas City. Lapointe's 21st and 22nd goals came in the second period when Montreal put the game out of reach, scoring four times.

Blades 4, Blazers 3

Gary Veneruzzo "cheated" Baltimore's fans, scoring two goals including the winner late in the second period to beat Vancouver.

Before Thursday night, the Blades had played seven games in their new home since the franchise was shifted from Michigan. They'd lost them all. So the Blades' management fans a "Guaranteed Win Night," saying they'd be treated to another game free if the team didn't break the jinx. It did.

Cougars 4, Toros 3

Toronto took six shots at Dave Dryden in overtime but the Chicago goalie shoved each one aside. Then Rosaire Paieiment took the Toros' first shot at Les Binkley — and it went in.

Paieiment led a rush down ice and beat Binkley at the 5:42 mark of the extra session after Toronto's Vaclav Nedomansky had tied the game with just 4:21 to play in the third period.

How much is bet?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans bet billions of dollars each year on sports events. Yet, no one knows who, how or to what extent gambling is carried on in the United States.

Representatives of professional and amateur sports acknowledge that the public bets illegally on their games but insist that making such wagering legal would prove a disaster.

The National Gambling Commission ended two days of public hearings Thursday in an effort, as Chairman Charles H. Morin said, to build a public record from the testimony of experts.

The commission got few hard facts. Mostly, the 15-member panel received statements from representatives of pro football, baseball, hockey and basketball, collegiate organizations, two authors on gambling books, a handicapper and a radio sports caster.

Yet, as commission Executive Director James Ritchie told Robert James, representing the NCAA and its position opposing sports gambling legalization: "What you all are saying is that legalization will ruin our sport, but we have no evidence to back us up. That's just our opinion."

"Well, we're seeking more than opinions. We want evidence," Ritchie added.

He told newsmen the commission is concerned that it is not getting the information it needs to make its report and recommendations on a national policy on gambling to the President and Congress in October 1976.

He said the commission will hold additional hearings on sports betting, including boxing, this spring, in addition to the already announced meetings on parimutuel betting, off-track wagering and organized crime and gambling.

"We hope to convince people involved in pro sports to come in and relate their experiences," Ritchie said. "The problem we're having is that people fear coming forth and fighting the party line."

"The position of pro sports is that it can regulate itself. The commissioners view that position with a general air of skepticism."

Of the 12 witnesses to testify, only the two authors, Kelso Sturgeon and Larry Merchant, favored legalization of some form of sports gambling.

Commissioner Pete Rozelle of the National Football League and Bowie Kuhn of major league baseball and President Clarence Campbell of the National Hockey League, along with James and the others, maintained that the legalization would greatly increase the difficulty of policing their sports to keep them free from scandal. The opportunities to bet and win huge sums of money would encourage unscrupulous gamblers to bribe players to fix games and shave points, they said.

And, even if the games were kept completely honest, fans would be suspicious every time a quarterback threw an interception at a crucial moment, they said.

Do people go fishing to catch fish? It would seem to be elementary Dear Watson. It isn't. In fact, there's nothing elementary about it. Quite complex human motives are at work at least among the 524 salmon anglers extensively interviewed recently in the Vancouver, B.C. area by Canadian Environmentalists. Almost 1/4 (22 per cent) of the anglers were fishing as an excuse "to be outdoors." Almost as many (18 per cent) were there "to take it easy and get rid of tension." A mere 13 per cent wanted to "eat fresh fish." Almost the same number (12 per cent) fished as a "change from working pressure." —Sports Afield

The Doctor Says:

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.
DEAR DR. LAMB — I have developed spastic colon problems. I have been to a doctor and have no organic disease. I have also had X rays which show spastic colon.

For several weeks the doctor kept me on a diet without any whole wheat bread or any food with roughage. This diet did not seem to help a whole lot.

After I read your column on this problem I went on the diet you suggested, after which I began having considerable pain in the lower left side. Is this pain normal after going on a whole wheat diet until your body adjusts to it? I baked my own bread with whole wheat flour so I was sure to get whole wheat. I'm stumped as to what to eat.

DEAR READER — Some people do have the problem you describe when they start a diet that includes more cereal fiber. The discomfort in related to excess formation of gas. This lasts about three weeks and then disappears.

If you have too much trouble with it try to gradually increase the roughage in your diet. That will help some.

Cereal fiber is particularly good for bowel function since it is not absorbed and it does soak up moisture. Its bulk with the moisture it retains helps to increase the size of the stool and prevent it from becoming a hard dried out residue that is related to the spastic colon problem.

The spastic area is commonly on the left side. That is thought to be the reason the diverticula (pockets of the colon) develop on the left side too. They are related to spastic colon and poor bowel habits.

Switching from white flour to whole wheat flour and products containing whole cereal, particularly whole wheat products, often corrects bowel problems. The whole program is a bit more involved. For people who have this condition, I recommend a bowel training program with the increased roughage. You can get the details of this program by writing to me at P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019 and asking for the booklet on spastic colon. Enclose 50 cents and a long self-addressed, stamped envelope.

It is important to realize that excess gas can be a problem for the first three weeks. But, if you can tolerate it, this condition will gradually disappear. While increasing the bulk in your diet, it is a good time to start cutting down on foods that contain little or no bulk. That means sugars, sweets, and refined foods used in white bread and desserts.

A good source of cereal bran is plain, unprocessed miller's bran. A ready source is ALL-BRAN. You can use this as a breakfast cereal. The more you use to begin with the more likely you will have gas problems. So don't go overboard at the beginning, but start perhaps first by just changing from white flour to whole wheat flour products. Then after a week start using a small bowl of ALL-BRAN for breakfast.

Incidentally, rice does not contain any significant amount of fiber and you won't get much benefit from it. Otherwise most of the unrefined cereals such as the brans and shredded wheat are useful to provide roughage.
